INTRODUCTORY

THE Cyclopedia of Ohio Biography issued under the title of "The Ohio Blue Book or 'Who's Who in the Buckeye State'" is believed to be the most successful work of this character ever issued on any State in the Union.

The idea is to produce a valuable book of reference giving concise biographical information about living people of Ohio who are active in all the lines of reputable endeavor, and are today moving the wheels of business and industry, of education, science, literature, art, music and the professions—people who today are "doing things" in the Buckeye State; and it is believed the list given marks the 1917 mile post in the biographical history of the State in a manner that will long stand as a record to be referred to with much interest.

It is by no means contended that the list contains the sketches of all Ohioans who are worthy of a place in such a volume, but it may be safely said that the work contains from five to ten times as many biographies of worthy subjects as ever before appeared in one Ohio publication. With the alphabetical and index arrangement it is easy to find the names of the subjects who appear in the work, and to the public, therefore, the "Ohio Blue Book or 'Who's Who in the Buckeye State'" is humbly submitted for what it is intended to be—a concise story of thousands of Ohio People who in 1917 are leaving their footprints on the sands of time in the vocational life of this great commonwealth.

Following the modern idea of the times in bookmaking, a quality of paper as thin as practical has been selected, making a volume easy to handle and only about one-third the thickness required had the ordinary thick paper been used, thus producing the work in much more commendable form.

THE PUBLISHER

EXPLANATORY NOTE—Where dates are given for various positions or occupations of the biographical subjects, followed by a dash, such as "President First National Bank, 1910—" or "Professor of Law, Univ. of Cin., 1896—" the dash (—) indicates that the subject of the sketch took said position at the date specified and is now holding the same, or occupies said position at the present time.

Under the head of Societies and Clubs, ("Socs. & Clubs") it has been deemed advisable to group after this classification, without taking up further space to distinguish the same, all business and social clubs, fraternal societies and organizations, college fraternities, etc., etc., as it can easily be distinguished by the names of the societies as given, their meaning or classification.

MOSELEY, EDWIN LINCOLN, Scientist; born, Union City, Mich., March 29, 1865; son of William Augustus Moseley and Sophia (Bingham) Moseley; his mother, a daughter of the missionary, Hiram Bingham, was the first white child born in Honolulu; educated: High Sch., Union City, Mich.; A. M., Univ. of Mich.; teacher of zoology and other sciences, Grand Rapids, Mich., and Sandusky, Ohio, High Schs.; spent nearly 10 mos. in Philippine Islands as a Mem. of the Steere Scientific Expedition; founded the museum of the Sandusky High Sch. of which he is curator; came to Bowling Green, O., Sept. 1914, and is now head of Science Dept., State Normal Coll., Bowling Green; author of "Nature Studv." a text book for Junior High Schs. and grammar schools, published by the World Book Co., Yonkers, N. Y., 1917; first scientific publication, "Lists of Birds, Mammals, and Birds' Eggs in the Museum of the Kent Scientific Inst.," Grand Rapids, Mich.; later published articles on birds in The Ibis, London, Bird

Lore, New York, and The American Naturalist, Philadelphia; while teaching at Sandusky, he gave much of his time for several years to collecting and studying the local flora, finding many rare species; his "Sandusky Flora" 167 pages, published in 1899 by the Ohio Acad. of Science as Special Papers, No. 1, gives more native plants than have been found in any other area of less than three hundred square miles; of sedges of the genus Carex, he found near Sandusky 16 more species than were known for the entire state of Indiana; he discovered and traced the submerged valleys in Sandusky Bay, describing them in The National Geographic Magazine, November, 1902, and more fully in his presidential address before the Ohio Acad. of Science on "The Formation of Sandusky Bay and Cedar Point," published in their thirteenth annual report; He calculated that for some centuries past the land about the western end of Lake Erie has been subsiding, as compared with the point of outlet, at the rate of about 2.14 feet per century; he has proven that the disease known as trembles or milk-sickness is really a poisoning produced by the White Snakeroot, the resin of which produces at least a part of the bad effect; besides the publications mentioned above, articles from his pen have appeared in The Monthly Weather Review, Washington Popular Astronomy, Science, The Youth's Companion, The Medical Record, N. Y. Good Health, Ohio Naturalist, Ohio Farmer, Ohio Educational Monthly; in his honor have been named a beautiful bird which he discovered in the Philippines and a flower, a species of the goldenrod he discovered in Ohio; birds, reptiles, plants, and other natural history specimens, collected by him, may be seen in considerable numbers at the British Museum, London; The Imperial Museum, Vienna; The National Museum, Washington; American Museum, N. Y.; Field Museum, Chicago, and many of the other great museums of the world. Socs. and clubs: Fellow Am. Assn. for the Advancement of Science; 9 yrs. Secy. and then Pres. of Ohio Academy of Science. Part Three—Appendix

Great care was exercised in editing the thousands of biographies in this publication. Besides going to original sources for information, every biography was forwarded to the subject for correction and revision. Yet in such a large list, some error was bound to occur and in other few instances, later matter was added to biographies after the work was in press.

Therefore, this "Section Three (Appendix)" has been incorporated in the publication together with an index to the same and where additions or changes have been made, reference to the page of the original biographies is given, so said biography can readily be interpreted.

Where the statements in the appendix differ with the original biography, the statements in the following appendix are correct.

EDMUND B. KING, ATTORNEY, SANDUSKY, OHIO. Judge Edmund B. King of the firm of King & Ramsey, attorneys of Sandusky, Ohio, is today one of the recognized leaders of the Ohio bar. He was born in Montville Township, Medina County, July 4, 1850. His father was a prominent farmer of that section, and the judge spent his boyhood days upon the farm, attending school winters until about eighteen years old, when he went to Oberlin Academy for two years, and also attended what is now the Baldwin-Wallace University at Berea, Ohio. During this period he taught school for six winters. He read law in Norwalk in the office of Wickham & Wildman, and was admitted to the bar by the District Court of Lorain County in August, 1873. The same year he was nominated and elected prosecuting attorney of Medina County, which office he held one term, but on account of an opening in his profession at Sandusky, he moved to that place in October, 1875, where he became a member of the firm of Bowen & King. He achieved marked success from the opening of his professional career and pursued his practice most successfully until elected Circuit Judge from the sixth Appellate District in 1894. The Circuit Bench of that district of which he was a member was regarded as one of the strongest of the State. In 1900, he resigned his position on the bench to again engage in his profession, and was succeeded by Hon. L. W. Hull. He returned to Sandusky, where as above stated, he is now a member of the law firm of King & Ramsey. Was president of Ohio State Bar Association in 1916-17. Numbered among his clients are three of the largest trunk lines of the railroads, a large list of public service and manufacturing corporations, and other large interests. He has always been active in the political affairs of the State and the Nation as a Republican, and his counsel has always been sought in moulding policies in the affairs of the Republican party in which he has always been a valuable adviser. For seventeen years he was a member of the Ohio National Guard holding commissions of lieutenant, captain, and major, which latter place, after holding nine years, he resigned in December, 1896. As a political speaker his services have been widely sought and he served on many committees of his county, district, and State, and was a presidential elector when Harrison was elected president. He married Miss Emma E. Hackett, February, 1874, and they have two children. He is prominent in the Masonic affairs of Sandusky, and has held many local offices in the local bodies, and has attained the Thirty-third degree of the A. A. Scottish Rite. Judge King is prominent in social affairs of his community, a member of the Sunnyside Club, the Sandusky Ad. Club, the Sandusky Commercial Club, and Plum Brook Country Club, and is personally a man who is highly regarded wherever known.

ROBINSON LOCKE AND THE TOLEDO BLADE. Were I attending a world's banquet in honor of the homes of every land and all the people, and were I called upon to propose a toast to the homes and mothers of the world, I believe my sentiment would be—"Here's to the mother, the queen of the home, whose scepter is the darning needle and whose national anthem is the sweet cradle lullaby."

This is but prefatory to the thought I wish to introduce in speaking of an Ohio newspaper, The Toledo Blade. It has always been the aim of those in charge of the policy of this paper to make the Blade a newspaper for the home, a paper that the grandfathers, grandmothers, fathers, mothers, and the children can read with interest, a paper that can be brought into the atmosphere of the home without question; one whose influence will be for good and whose pages will be educational and where the happenings of the world are put forth in a manner that makes it welcome to every fireside.

That the publishers have succeeded is unquestionable for today the Daily Blade holds the undisputed position as the great home newspaper all about a very wide range of territory with Toledo as the center.

Harking back, the memory of few living men and women "runneth not to the contrary" in this section when they did not know about The Toledo Blade, as it was established in 1848. Passing by its early days in swaddling clothes, the weekly Blade came into national prominence about 1865 when the late D. R. Locke bought an interest in the same from A. D. Pelton, its early pilot. Mr. Locke was invited to cast his lot with the Blade primarily by reason of his "Nasby Letters." To do justice to this famous character would be to write a book, but his genius was conceived in turbulent times in the early days of the Civil War and his first "Nasby Letters" were set direct from the printer's case as they came out of his wonderful brain while he was engaged on the old Findlay Ohio, Jeffersonian. These times brought forth a Lincoln, they brought forth a Grant and they brought forth "Petroleum V. Nasby." And why this title? It was in the early days of the great petroleum oil excitement in Pennsylvania, hence the "Petroleum," and as Mr. Locke had read much of English history, he was always fascinated by reading of the battle of Naseby which he shortened into "Nasby." Then wishing for something more to emphasize the turbulent times of 1860 to 1865, he took "V." from the volcano Vesuvius. And what more appropriate to express these turbulent days? The spouting petroleum, the thundering Vesuvius and the battle cry at Naseby—"Petroleum V. Nasby."

His famous letters which swayed the emotions of the whole country conceived in the early sixties, began in the Blade upon his identification with the paper in 1865 and continued in the same in various forms until his death in 1888. First came his Confederate Cross Roads articles: Echoes from Kentucky: Swinging Around the Circle, a series of travel articles; Nasby in Exile, etc., etc., and as a writer of short stories he was intensely interesting and dramatic and his writings have appeared in book form in several editions.

In their intimate relationship he delegated his newspaper ideas and policies to his son, Robinson Locke, and in their travels together through the old world and in their close personal association Robinson Locke was so schooled that he capably took upon himself the reins of management of the Blade at his father's death (1888) when he was elected president of the company, and has successfully dictated its course and policies ever since.

When Robinson Locke accompanied his father to Europe early in 1881, he assisted him in writing the "Nasby in Exile" articles and when they were published in book form young Mr. Locke received very flattering credit for his share in the work in the author's introduction. Robinson Locke returned again to Europe in the fall of 1881 settling in Zurich to study German, French and Music, after which he and his father again toured the continent together. Later the younger man resumed his studies and in 1883 he had been home only a short time when he received the appointment as U. S. Consul to Newcastle-on-Tyne by President Arthur, his career there terminating with the election of President Cleveland.

Upon his assuming charge of The Blade again, Robinson Locke found the weekly a national institution with a phenomenal circulation and started out to make the Daily Blade in this Northwestern territory what the weekly was in the nation, and without taking space for details, he has signally succeeded. As a moulder of public opinion and an influence for progress and higher ideals it is a power for good wherever read.

While Mr. Locke has traveled and written extensively, his "Days and Nights in Old Japan" was among his most valued efforts and appeared in The Blade.

Always interested in the theatre, as an institution, Mr. Locke has been a close student of the drama, ancient and modern, and for more than twenty years has written intelligently, appreciatively and interestingly upon the various matters concerning the stage and its people. His critiques, appearing year after year in the Blade, have had a wide reaching influence, as well for their constructive quality as for their honesty, candor and force, all expressed in a fluent style that appealed to the casual reader as well as to the thoughtful student. Mr. Locke's keenest sympathy always has been for the author, producer and actor of high ideals. He ever has been helpful in maintaining an exalted standard, and his consistent effort in this direction has made his opinions respected by the readers of his paper and by the members of the theatrical profession as well.

In his offices in the Blade building Mr. Locke has assembled a collection of theatrical material unequalled in this country. Every prominent member of the profession has from one to eight bound volumes of photographs, autograph letters, newspaper clippings, magazine articles, old playbills, and other data referring to his career. There are over 300 of these bound volumes. In addition to these there are nearly 3000 portfolios containing similar matter, awaiting the bound volume stage. Then there are hundreds of thousands of other clippings and portraits, which are being added to every day.

This vast amount of material all arranged most systematically so as to be instantly available, has been gathered from all over the country, and makes a most comprehensive history of the stage and its people during the past fifty years. This invaluable collection, which never can be duplicated, has been bequeathed by Mr. Locke to the New York Public Library, where it will be accessible to every one interested in this fascinating phase of human knowledge.

C. A. KING & CO., TOLEDO, O. To speak of the growth, prosperity and development of Toledo without speaking of the firm of C. A. King & Co., would be like describing a play and leaving out the players, and to write of C. A. King & Co. means writing of Frank I. King, for Mr. King today and for years has been constantly and closely identified with this city in its public and business affairs. His judgment has always been given the greatest consideration and respect and his counsel sought in large affairs both public and private. No better description of the man can probably be given than taking the words of a friend who some time ago in writing of him said: In the catalog of Mr. King's characteristics, the "git thar" quality constantly occurs. It is first asserted in the record of his sturdy and self-reliant boyhood. With a capacity for enjoyment no less keen than that of the average twelve-year-old, he found time enough away from the play-ground and school-room for at least partial self-support, and the record of his first labors is made more notable by the fact that they were not absolutely necessary, in spite of the early demise of his father, and that many of the staid citizens whom he served came, in time, to be business associates of their former newsboy. Aggressive persistency again characterized him in his later school experience, and continued to assert itself in his subsequent political and business career. High school chronicles picture him as an active spirit in school affairs. He was president of the class from which he graduated in 1887, and president of the common council, which he invaded a few years later. The latter distinction was conferred upon him unanimously for three successive terms—once, after a good-natured political contest (with the accompanying excitement of all-night sessions, etc., etc.), which has gone down in municipal history, and is still fresh in the memory of old campaigners. Partisan opponents Mr. King possessed in plenty, but it is doubtful if even the most rabid of them ever questioned his executive ability or the success of his administration. Here, as elsewhere, he was pre-eminently a man of action—and that fact was demonstrated in the enactment of a mass of legislation from which the city derived immeasurable benefit. But the amenities of political life, attractive enough in themselves, lacked substance and solidity, and Mr. King's restless energy naturally turned to more satisfying effort. He had joined the office force of his uncle, C. A. King, immediately upon the close of his school life, and six years later—in 1883—was admitted to membership in the firm. Quick to express an opinion, arrive at a conclusion, or form a judgment, and prone to follow thought with immediate action, Mr. King might be deemed by some more daring than prudent; but that is far from being the truth. Conservatism is a strong element of his character. It is simply that he is gifted with the knack of quick decision, and has schooled himself therein. His first judgment is generally final, but in that first judgment he has swiftly weighed all the pros and cons and reached a conservative and logical conclusion in less time than it would take one of slower wit to get the subject well under way. And this faculty may be emphasized as one of the "contributory causes" already referred to as responsible for his success. The story of Mr. King's life from the time of his entrance into the firm of C. A. King & Co., is substantially the story of that firm's splendid success; for the best efforts of his life have been devoted to that achievement. On the death of C. A. King, in 1893, the control of the business passed into his hands and the sun of prosperity has shone steadily upon it ever since—as "King's market reports" have said, "through fires, panics, wars, and floods," it has come without a blemish. And it has been no ordinary success. Aside from the financial strength of the firm, it enjoys throughout the country today a friendly clientage that makes it unique among the grain houses of Toledo. This is due solely to the personal efforts of Mr. King in his widely-read reports. It would be difficult to over-estimate the influence of these publications. Written in terse, epigrammatic, and forceful style, they fairly bubble over with good humor, good sense, and good business logic, and are read religiously and trusted implicitly by hundreds and hundreds of men who look upon "Our Boy Solomon" as an old and valuable friend. Certainly these circulars may be chronicled as one of the samples of Mr. King's success. Since his earlier experiences Mr. King has never sought political preferment, but other honors have come to him unsought. He has been one of the five sinking fund trustees of Toledo, president of the produce exchange, and president of the chamber of commerce. His name is included in the directorate of several prominent local institutions, among them the Second National bank, rated the strongest in Ohio. His home life has been peculiarly pleasant. Married in 1882 to Jennie L. Collins, they have reared a bright and interesting family. "Take him for all in all," Frank Ingersoll King is at once a true type, and a direct contradiction of that familiar American institution, "the self-made man." Distinctively self-made, in all that the term implies, he happily lacks those unlovable qualities which generally mark and mar the native American who has risen to riches and eminence through inherent grit, ability, and far-sightedness. "Self-made" nearly always suggests years of grinding toil, utterly unrelieved by indulgence in the little comforts and joys of every-day existence—whereas, Frank King, while he has unquestionably toiled, and fought, and made sacrifices, has done so in a whole-souled, lighthearted, generous sort of way altogether foreign to the self-made man, as he is popularly pictured. The offices of C. A. King & Co., are in the Second National Bank building, fourteenth floor and now associated with the firm is Mr. Fred C. King, son of the subject of this sketch, who identified himself with the business some five years ago after an extensive tour of the countries of Europe and the old world. Young Mr. King has had all the advantages of a university training as well as a practical education in business affairs, is junior editor of the "Our Boy Solomon" pages and with a fine sense of the meaning of serious business affairs has before him a bright future.

EDWARD DRUMMOND LIBBEY. The number of Toledo men who stand forth as world characters is large. This is true in economics, education, the arts, science, literature, politics, and in nearly all the fields of endeavor. In this list the name of Libbey is one of the foremost, for perhaps no man in Toledo has served to place Toledo on the world's map and made the city known far and wide as has Edward Drummond Libbey.

Mr. Libbey was born at Chelsea, Mass., April 17, 1854, and is the son of William L. and Julia M. (Miller) Libbey. William L. Libbey (born 1827, died 1883) was the son of Israel and Mary Libbey, and in 1850 became the confidential clerk of Jarvis and Commeraize, glass importers and manufacturers, whose factory was located in South Boston. The story of cut-glass in United States began with Deming Jarvis, the senior member of this firm and the pioneer glass manufacturer of New England. In 1855, Mr. Jarvis sold his factory to his trusted clerk, Mr. Libbey, and the latter conducted the same for ten years, when he went into the manufacture of glassware exclusively. He built up a very successful business, but he sold it in 1870, after having been appointed general manager of the New England Glass Company of East Cambridge, Mass. He continued in that capacity until 1880, when he purchased the business entire, taking his son, Edward D. Libbey, as partner. Edward Drummond Libbey received his early education in the public schools of Boston, and later attended lectures at the Boston University. In 1874, at the age of twenty years, he was given an interest in his father's glass business, but he began by performing the most trivial of office duties, assuming various clerical positions in order to learn every detail of the work. Upon the death of his father, in 1883, he became the sole proprietor, and the business continued with the same successful stride under his leadership. The discovery of natural gas in Northwestern Ohio was Toledo's opportunity as it afforded cheap fuel to the manufacturer, and in 1888 Mr. Libbey moved his business to this city and incorporated it as "The Libbey Glass Company," of which he is president. Toledo has never regretted the invasion of Mr. Libbey, for he has done as much for the city as has any resident who ever lived here. Within the past eighteen years he has been largely interested in the manufacture of automatic machinery for the making of glassware, and introduced to the trade the Owens machine that blows bottles automatically, doing away with the old hand-and-lung method. Mr. Libbey is president of the Toledo Glass Company, a corporation established by him in 1894 and in 1903 he organized the Owens Bottle Machine Company, an Ohio corporation, which company secured an exclusive license from the Toledo Glass Company for the United States, for the manufacture of machines and machine-made bottles. This company introduced the bottle machine into the United States and has made a world success. Mr. Libbey is also president of the Owens European Bottle Machine Company, which was organized in 1905, and which company purchased from the Toledo Glass Company all European rights for the Owens Bottle Machine, and which rights were in turn sold to the syndicate of European bottle manufacturers. He is also president of The Libbey-Owens Sheet Glass Co., a company organized to manufacture window glass on a new machine developed under the Colburn patents. So now Toledo has the largest cut-glass factory in the world—The Libbey Glass Company—as well as the largest plate glass plant; and besides it is the home of the Owens Bottle Machine, one of the greatest inventions in this line conceived by the genius of man. In the cutting of glass into intricate and beautiful designs this nation excels all others, and the Libbey Glass Company is recognized as standing at the head of the cut-glass makers of this country. From the beginning down to the present the company has held fast to the highest ideals until it is possible for the connoisseur to pick out the Libbey product almost immediately. The triumphs of the Libbey Glass Company at the World's Fair at Chicago in 1893 are still fresh in the public mind. It may be said that the magnificent enterprise which prompted the company to erect at a cost of more than $100,000 a beautiful building in which the art of making and cutting glass was carried on in all its branches, was the culminating effort of almost a century of steady progress. At the World's Fair at St. Louis, too, Libbey cut-glass was adequately in evidence, the interval that had elapsed from the time of the previous exposition showing an artistic advance, quite in keeping with the previous progress of the product. To editor of this sketch who nearly twenty years ago held a conversation with Mr. Libbey about the progress and developments in the glass industry, the farsightedness and prophecies of Mr. Libbey have been little short of marvelous.

Always a lover of art, he has been the chief benefactor in establishing the Toledo Museum of Art, which is one of the greatest centers of attraction in the City of Toledo. On May 23, 1909, he and his wife, Florence (Scott) Libbey, conveyed by deed to the trustees of the museum, seven lots and all the buildings thereon, the place conveyed being the old homestead of the late Maurice A. Scott, father of Mrs. Libbey, in Scottwood addition to the city. The terms of this deed are that the trustees shall hold the same for fifty years, erect thereon a museum for the advancement and display of works of art, and, after the lapse of the stated time, the trustees may do with the property as they may desire. In addition to this gift, Mr. Libbey purchased one hundred feet on the west side of the new museum property, on Monroe street, extending four hundred feet to Grove Place, thus giving the museum a total frontage on Monroe St. of five hundred feet and the same on Grove Place. This acquisition was purchased for the purpose of protecting the museum from any future encroachment on the part of unsympathetic property owners who might erect unsightly buildings thereon close to the beautiful Greek museum structure. Mr. Libbey has been president of the Toledo Museum of Art since its organization in 1901. He contributed $200,000 to the original building fund besides beautiful Scott Place. He presented to the museum the gallery of Egyptian antiquities which he collected himself in Egypt. His gifts to the museum also include many important paintings, among them the famous "Moonlight," by Blakelock, together with important canvases by Winslow Homer, J. H. S. Kever and others. He has also made important gifts of Venetian and early glass and many examples of Oriental art. In 1916 he offered to subscribe $400,000 to an endowment fund if the citizens of Toledo would raise $200,000. There was an enthusiastic response and the required sum was subscribed within a few days. President Libbey was so pleased with the result that he announced to the trustees that he would make an additional gift of $300,000 or $400,000 necessary for the completion of the present building.

Socially he is a member of the Union League Club of Chicago, the Duquesne Club of Pittsburgh, the Toledo Club of Toledo, Lotus Soc., Salmagundi Club, National Arts Club of New York, Midwick Country Club, Los Angeles, Calif., and the Wianno Club of Wianno, Mass.

FRANK P. CHAPIN, TOLEDO. Life Insurance may well be termed a science, a profession, and a business ranking high in public affairs and classed with the most staple vocations that make up the great machinery of economics. There was a time when life insurance men had to "blaze the way" in talking life insurance to the business man of discernment and far-sightedness and point out its necessities and advantages. But this time has government bonds, bank stocks, or farm regarded as an investment, the same as government bonds, bank stocks, or farm investments. The only question is the kind of policy, how arranged, and what company offers the most attractive ideas together with its financial standing. When Francis P. Chapin, whose offices are in the Ohio Building, decided to take up Life Insurance as his business and profession, with his usual care and sound judgment after looking about and studying the situation and other companies, he decided to connect himself with the Equitable Life Assurance Society of New York City, whose home office is 120 Broadway. That he made a wise choice is unquestioned, and it is fortunate for the company as well as for himself that he made this selection, for his record with the Equitable is one that few agencies of the country enjoy, first by reason of Mr. Chapin's management, and second the standing of the Equitable itself. I know of no better way of showing what has brought this success than giving a brief story of Francis P. Chapin's life.

Mr. Chapin, who controls the business of the Equitable Life Assurance Society in Northwestern Ohio, was born in Lenox, Ashtabula county, Ohio, January 23, 1851, being the only son of Franklin H. and Polly J. (Isherwood) Chapin. His father was a successful farmer and dairyman, and the boyhood of Mr. Chapin was spent upon the farm where his opportunities for education were limited and confined to the district and village schools. Being the only boy in the family and the farm consisting of 160 acres upon which was kept a dairy of twenty to thirty cows for cheese making, as the farm was divided in two sections some distance from each other and situated on opposite sides of the road, the herding of the cattle each night and morning was a good sized job and young Francis was conscripted into service at a very early age, so much so, in fact, that he never had the opportunities for playing that are usually afforded children. The summer after he was five years old he was given one cow to milk regularly each night and morning, besides his other duties, while the following year another one was added to his task. The great use and need of a boy's services coupled with his willing desire made the task one of pleasure for him, which continued to increase in later years as his ability to accomplish grew greater. His early dream, however, was to be a merchant in a city and his earliest memories and resolves were that he would never be willing to remain upon the farm. At the age of eighteen he came to Toledo to learn more of actual business through a three months' course at Jordan's Business College, where after five weeks he had mastered the entire course, and at once secured a position with Schulte & Birkenhauer, dry goods merchants, at the old No. 213 Summit Street. So anxious was he to succeed in city work and prove to his father that he was fit for something besides farming, that he agreed to work for the first six months without pay. He had no money, but pluckily began his duties as clerk, and worked so arduously that his employers notified him at the end of thirty days that they would pay him $20.00 per month dating from his commencement, which enabled him to pay his own way, as he had never told his parents he was working without compensation, believing he could soon prove his worth. He remained with this firm with frequent promotions until February 2, 1874, when he accepted a position with W. S. Isherwood & Co., tobacco manufacturers, in charge of the packing department. In 1875 he was given a position as traveling salesman looking after the wholesale trade in the Eastern and New England States, meeting with marked success and continuing in this capacity for two years, when the firm was succeeded by Powers & Stuart, with whom he remained in a similar position with a large salary increase until 1878. At this time the firm was reorganized under the name of Stuart, Chapin & Co., in order to admit Mr. Chapin to partnership. The business of this firm was very successful, amounting to over a half million yearly. On January 3, 1881, Mr. Chapin sold his interest to W. S. Isherwood & Co., who succeeded to the business, though he was to remain with the new firm a short time, in order to assist the new management in taking up the reins. During this time he was looking around for a new business connection, and finally decided to cast his lot with the Daily Bee, which, up to that time, had not met with financial success. He accordingly purchased an interest in the company, and on February 15, 1881, assumed the business management of that paper; his untiring efforts soon placed the paper on a paying basis, and while the management remained in his hands, the property was of great value and very successful. About 1890 Mr. Chapin suffered a nervous breakdown from overwork, resulting after a few years' illness in his being compelled to dispose of all his business interests in order to regain his health. While he had always been successful in all his business ventures, the old adage that "every man has his calling" was verified, for, while some find their true occupation early, others reach it later on, and Mr. Chapin who had always been a firm believer in Life Insurance, having taken his first policy when only twenty years of age, after making a study of its vast possibilities, benefits and advantages, decided to embark in that profession, for such it really is. Having a taste for the best of everything he was careful to connect himself with the best Company with which to do business, and in order that he might have full confidence in what he was recommending to his business friends or acquaintances, so as stated, he chose a connection with the Equitable Life Assurance Society. Mr. Chapin is a man in whom the public believes and can trust; his territory embraces several counties in Northwestern Ohio. He has a suite of spacious and handsomely appointed offices in the Ohio Building, and possesses every facility for the dispatch of business. He is one of the largest personal writers of Life Insurance in the state, and his name ranks high on the list of producers of the Equitable.

Mr. Chapin was married December 18, 1878, to Miss Zatella M. St. John, and their home, which is among the many charming ones of which Toledo can boast, 2211 Jefferson Avenue, was purchased from Mr. S. R. Calloway, when that gentleman took the presidency of the New York Central Railroad, which necessitated his removal from Toledo.

It was Longfellow who said:

"The heights that great men oft have reached,
Were not attained by sudden flight;
For they while their companions slept,
Were toiling onward in the night."

Which has always been the motto and belief of Mr. Chapin, that "As ye sow so shall ye reap." His life has been one of arduous toil and strenuous effort, and as a result, to-day finds Frank P. Chapin, as he is familiarly known, not only one of the leading Life Insurance men of the Country, but one of Toledo's solid financiers and business men, with many interests in Banks and other Companies with which he is associated.

DENNIS D. DONOVAN, of the firm of Donovan & Warden, Attorneys, of Napoleon, Ohio, is one of Ohio's best lawyers. He today stands among the foremost members of the bar, and has the confidence of a very large clientele. His early life led him into the channels of politics where he achieved marked distinction, and while he is still active in public affairs when he feels it his duty to lend a hand, his large practice and the interests of his clients are always first in his mind. He has had a thoroughly practical education and large experience in general affairs which are valuable assets in his practice. He is a native of Ohio and Henry County, and was born January 31, 1859. His parents, John and Catherine (Hannan) Donovan, were both natives of Ireland. They finally came to Henry County where they were married, and for years were valued and respected members of that community.

D. D. Donovan's early education was obtained in the public schools, assisting with the work on his father's farm in the summer and attending school in the winter. Later he attended the Valparaiso, Indiana, Normal School, after which he took up the role of instructor, and followed teaching for three years. He began his higher education with the view of entering the law and during the years he was at Valparaiso he kept up a course of reading from law text-books which he continued while teaching. In 1883, without relinquishing the cherished idea of the law, he entered into the mercantile business combining it with lumber and timber. Two years later, he was appointed postmaster at Deshler Ohio, where he was then living, and held that office until he was elected to the Ohio Legislature in 1887, and reelected in 1889. Before the expiration of this last term, he was nomiinated on the Democratic ticket for Congress in the Sixth Congressional District, and was elected the following November by a majority of 1,700 votes. By reorganizing the congressional districts in 1891, Henry County was transferred to the Fifth District and Mr. Donovan was nominated and reelected in the Fifty-third Congress by an increased majority. In the last year of his second term in Congress, he entered the law department of Georgetown University at Washington, and was graduated from that institution with the degree of Bachelor of Laws. On his return from Congress, he began the practice of his profession at his old home. In his political creed Mr. Donovan is a staunch Democrat, a firm believer in the principles of Jefferson and Jackson and has always practically stood for the principles enunciated in the platforms of his party. He has always been an active worker for party success and a prominent figure in partisan councils, and in every position he has been called upon to fill, he has sustained himself well. On his removal to Napoleon he became a member of the firm of Cahill, Donovan & Warden, and later the firm became Donovan & Warden, as now constituted. Several times he has been offered political positions of high importance, but as yet, remains steadfast to his profession.

He was married in 1891 to Miss Geneva C. Walmire of a prominent family of that vicinity, and who has always been a help to him in his active work.

Mr. Donovan is genial, courteous and kind, and is one of the solid men of his profession.

He is an Elk and a member of the Knights of Columbus at Napoleon, and a valued member of the affairs in that community.

JOHN LINCOLN GRAHAM, son of Amos and Elizabeth (Crumley) Graham, was born in Amanda Township, Fairfield County, Ohio. His father was one of the successful farmers of the County, and lived on a farm until his declining years, when he and his family moved to Lancaster, Ohio.

The subject of this sketch lived with his parents on the farm, performing the usual duties of a farmer boy, attending the country school, and later High School in Lancaster, until he was eighteen years old. During this time he had fitted himself for a country school teacher, and having taught several terms of school, attended school at the National Normal University at Lebanon, Ohio, for a couple of years, and after teaching school a couple of years more, completed a business course at a Commercial College in Columbus, Ohio, and accepted a position as bookkeeper. Three or four years were spent in Columbus in this capacity, when he returned to Lancaster where he became a member of the Flouring Mill firm of The Graham & Black Co., now the Graham Milling Co., of which firm he was an active member until 1909, since which time he has been inactive in said firm, giving practically all his time to The Lancaster National Bank, as Director, Vice President and Cashier, being the active Manager of the bank. He is Treasurer of the Claflin Engineering Co., and interested in various enterprises.

He is a member of all the York and Scottish Rites Masonic Bodies, including Knights Templar, and 32d Degree, Member of Shrine, Treasurer of all the local Masonic Bodies, Past Master of Lancaster Lodge No. 57, F. & A. M., Past Eminent Commander of Lancaster Commandery No. 2, K. T. Member of the First Presbyterian Church, being member of the Board of Trustees, and Secretary of said board. Has served as Superintendent of the Sunday School, member of Lancaster Chamber of Commerce, Lancaster Country Club, also member of Board of Trustees of Lancaster Public Library, being Secretary of said board.

In 1908, was married to Fannie Pauline, daughter of A. J. and Elizabeth (Court-right) Musser. Mr. Musser was one of the best known and successful farmers and Stock Dealers of Fairfield County. The subject of the sketch has one daughter, Miss Pauline Elizabeth. His residence is No. 623 North Broad Street, Lancaster, Ohio.

JOB FISH, son of Elias Hicks Fish and Betsey (Van Wagner) Fish, was born March 17, 1828, in Hartland Township, Niagara County, N. Y. His paternal ancestors were all Quakers, back, at least, as far as 1643, when Thomas Fish lived in Portsmouth, Rhode Island.

He was driver on the towpath of the Erie Canal two round trips between Buffalo and Albany, when 15 years old. Educated at district school in winters, Auburn Township, Geauga County, Ohio; Western Reserve Seminary at Chester, Geauga County, 1845 and 1846. Among his teachers were Joseph W. Gray, late founder and editor of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, and Charles Lounsburg Fish (Job's brother), who became an eminent admiralty lawyer of Cleveland. In the latter's office Job studied law, summers, 1850 and 1851, and contributed numerous articles to newspapers of Cleveland, Buffalo and Columbus, 1848 and 1854. At the age of 17 he organized a debating school and took an active part in its proceedings. It attracted men from other districts including among them Oliver Brown half brother of John Brown, the martyr.

Job learned to read French, German, Spanish and Dutch after his fiftieth year, the last after he was eighty and he is especially familiar with the best literature of France and Germany.

He came to Erie County, Ohio, in 1851. Taught 53 years, most of the time in Berlin or Florence Townships, that county and in select schools, academy work, high schools, teachers' classes and teachers' institutes.

Mr. Fish's pupils came not only from every township in the county, but also from adjoining and distant counties. It was frequently the case that his pupils from a distance outnumbered the resident pupils.

Two of Mr. Fish's pupils have written some impressions of Mr. Fish and his teaching which are given below:

"His aim from the beginning of his teaching to the end was to develop his pupils' minds. He forced nothing but only furnished exercise for the pupils' mental faculties; from the first he saw that the brain like the body loves and demands exercise, and it is a fact that his students were as intent in the inspiring exercise in the school room as they were in games out-of-doors.

"In his youth he was an athlete; he joined his scholars outdoors and in, and a winter in his school was one continuous merry-making. It is no wonder that the children in the lower schools looked forward to the great day when they could attend his school, nor that youths from a distance were happy with any plan which would place them among his pupils. And the best part of it was that what they found in the school was better and more wonderful than their anticipations. Certainly he had every qualification for a teacher. He was a natural-born mathematician, and if he had no other gifts, he would, by devoting himself to mathematics, have risen to a high place. He had a still greater gift in language, not in mere words, but in the language that is true and fitting. He had a great gift in philosophy, and not in that visionary philosophy, but in the philosophy of reality of which there is but one kind in the universe. But beyond these gifts, he was a lover of everything beautiful in nature, art and literature. He was deeply moved by music, and if he has admired and studied men who were great in other things, he has gone through life as if hand in hand with the great poets.

"He had such a memory as people had when there was no printing and they had to remember. Another gift was humor and love of wit and humor, and with this went and still goes the grandest, biggest, most contagious laugh that ever made a merry world. His extensive reading and the habit of thinking on what he read, coupled with an exceptionally retentive memory, enabled him to enliven and enrich his teaching with a wealth of illusion and illustration. All his life his greatest interest has been in human beings. His heart went out to each and every one of his pupils; and so manifestly genuine was his desire to help them make the most of themselves that all their natural timidity and reserve vanished before him, and they freely and unconsciously unfolded to him their better natures which were thus in the most favorable condition for development.

"By his comments on the lives of great men whose characters he opportunely portrayed and by his uniform impartiality, straight-forwardness and friendliness toward his pupils without regard to their characters or aptitudes, he gave to high principles of conduct in life such an alluring aspect that every pupil felt impelled to adopt them. Without punishment, threat, preaching, or exhortation, Mr. Fish made his school room the scene of diligence in study and alertness in recitation. Great numbers of his pupils have given him their affection; and many then and in after life opened their minds to him more fully than to their parents, making him their confidant and counselor.

Still enjoying full mental and physical vigor, he is the exemplification of contentment as the days go by at his old home in Erie county.

ROBERT BAUR, one of Toledo's substantial business men, was born July 30, 1861, at Oberhofen, Canton Berne, Switzerland. His father, Abraham Baur, was an attorney-at-law and notary public and took part in the military affairs of his country. He never spared any pains or expense in educating his children, of whom there were nine, seven boys and two girls, and his entire income was spent in that direction. The family came to America in 1873, coming directly to Toledo. Robert Baur had attended the excellent State School of Switzerland until his eleventh year, and on his arrival in Toledo passed through the public schools and later was a student at Baldwin University and the Berea Wallace College. On leaving college he secured a position with the Sterling Carpet Company, remaining with that concern three years during which time he devoted his evenings to the study of shorthand and bookkeeping at the Tri-State and Davis Business Colleges. In June, 1886, he obtained a position with the firm of Schunk & Hillenkamp, now known as the Star Hardware Company. Mr. Baur was employed first as bookkeeper, and being so closely allied with the interest of the company, he progressed with it. On the incorporation of the firm under its present name he was elected Secretary-Treasurer, in which position he continued to exercise those business qualities which have brought him such deserved success. In date he associated himself with The Schunk Hardware Company 504-506 Monroe Street, and is now Secretary and Treasurer of the company, which is one of the best known concerns in Toledo. Mr. Baur was married to Miss Ernestine Koeppen on November 11, 1890, and they reside at 1110 Martha Street, the parents of three boys, Elmer, Joseph and Clarence. While Mr. Baur is not active in politics, he takes a great interest in the success of the Republican party and never fails to perform his duty at the polls. He owns a finely selected library of over 1000 volumes and is much interested in education and mind improvement. One of his specialties is Microscopy (entomology branch). He is a lover of Astronomy and possesses a valuable telescope and many notable charts and books on this subject. He studied law for two years and many today seek his advice on commercial law and he takes much delight in helping his friends and patrons in solving many problems which come up in the course of business. He is president and treasurer of the O. C. U. V. Benefit Society and has been an active member since 1885; is a Mason and be-lons to Rubicon Lodge No. 237; a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church and has been treasurer of his home church since 1892 and for ten years Superintendent of the Sunday School.

Home address: 18 Hershey St., Dayton, Ohio.

Ohio Colleges and Universities

DENISON UNIVERSITY. The college now known as Denison University was founded in 1831. Its first Board of Trustees was appointed and organized on May 26th and 27th, its doors were opened to students December 13th, and it was incorporated by act of the Legislature of Ohio on the 3rd day of February, 1832. The founders were members of the religious denomination known as Baptists, and they were inspired by a realization that the interests of their denomination demanded educated leaders, not only in the ministry but among laymen as well. From the outset the course of study provided for aimed to give a general educational foundation and not a special training in theology. In addition to the regular subject matter of the typical college curriculum of the time, a certain amount of theological instruction was offered, but this was dropped as soon as the development of Theological Seminaries made it easily available elsewhere. For some years an effort was made to manage the school on the "manual labor system," allowing the students to earn their way by labor on the college farm or in shops that were provided, but the system was at last given up as impracticable.

Not much was done in accumulation of endowment until about the close of the Civil War. In 1867 a fund of $100,000 was completed for permanent investment, the income to pay expenses of instruction. Since that date, buildings, equipment and permanent endowment funds have been added from time to time until the total valuation, at the beginning of the year 1917, stands at more than a million and three quarters. The last increases, previous to the writing of these paragraphs, was the completion of a new $500,000 endowment fund in June, 1916, and the addition of more than 100 acres of land to the college grounds. With this growth of material resources, a broader range of studies has been provided, especially in such subjects as the Modern Languages, Education, History and Political Science, and the Natural Sciences. At the last meeting before these lines were written, the Board of Trustees authorized the establishment of a department of Bible Study and Religious Education. It is not the aim of Denison to give technical training for special professions or vocations, but to provide such a fundamental education as will fit young men and women to get more out of life for themselves and to put more into life for others, no matter what profession or calling they may finally enter. In the first seventy years of its history its degrees were given only to young men. An affiliation was formed with Shepardson College for Women in 1887, and in 1900 the Board of Trustees voted to give degrees thereafter without distinction of sex. The number of students in college classes at the time of the writing of this sketch is just about 500. Doane Academy, a preparatory school maintained by the same Board, has a registration which brings the total up to more than 600.

Its regularly organized departments of study, each with a Professor of full rank at its head, as shown by the catalogue of 1916-1917, are as follows: Philosophy and Education, Mathematics, History and Political Science, Greek, Latin, Rhetoric and English Literature, Romance Languages, German, Physics, Chemistry, Civil Engineering, Geology, Astronomy, Zoology, and Botany. Instruction in the Theory of Music, with full college credit towards degrees, is given in the Denison Conservatory of Music, under control of the same Board as the college. A department of Bible Study and Religious Education is in process of organization. The Conservatory of Music, in addition to the theoretical courses mentioned, provides instruction in Voice, Piano, Organ and Violin, but study in these departments is credited towards the Conservatory diploma, not towards an academic degree.

Among the graduates and former students of Denison have been many men well known in the public and professional life of Ohio. Ex-Governor Harmon was a graduate in the class 1866. Among other members of the legal profession in Ohio who are Denison men may be mentioned T. J. Keating, H. J. Booth, D. E. Williams, W. Harvey Jones, and W. A. Donaldson, of Columbus; J. H. Doyle, Howard Lewis, Frank Lewis, and Mark Winchester of Toledo; John A. Chamberlain, David E. Green, Walter Flory, and the late Judge Harvey Keeler, of Cleveland; Frank E. Whittemore, of Akron; Benjamin E. James of Bowling Green; Judge Howard Ferris and Burton B. Tuttle, of Cincinnati; Secretary of State W. D. Fulton, Judge Thomas B. Fulton, Judge John M. Swartz, Roderic Jones, J. Howard Jones, Probate Judge Robbins Hunter, and Charles Wesley Montgomery, of Newark; Judge B. F. McCann, O. Brit Brown, and Ira Crawford, of Dayton. Among the well known men of Ohio at present on the Denison Board of Trustees may be mentioned Mr. Ambrose Swasey, of Cleveland; Charles T. Lewis, of Toledo; G. Moore Peters, of Cincinnati; Eugene J. Barney, Edward A. Deeds, Frederick P. Beaver, and Judge B. F. McCann of Dayton. Members of the Board connected with the newspaper business in Ohio are Dr. George W. Lasher, of the Journal and Messenger, Cincinnati; James M. Amos, of the Cambridge Jeffersonian, and Osman C. Hooper, of the Columbus Evening Dispatch. The President of Denison is Clark W. Chamberlain, A. B., Ph. D., born on a farm at LaGrange, Ohio, a graduate of Denison in the class of 1894, former Professor of Physics in Colby University, Denison University, and Vassar College in succession, and known in scientific circles as the inventor of the Compound Interferometer, one of the most effective instruments ever devised for making delicate measurements in the study of rays of light.

OBERLIN COLLEGE. Oberlin College came into existence in 1833. It was a time of the settling of the West—a period of great material development, and educational quickening. The founders aimed at a profoundly Christian, radically conscientious educational center for the Middle West. There was a definite intention also to extend educational opportunities to women. Writing in 1908, William B. Shaw said: "The three young women upon whom Oberlin conferred the degree of A. B. in 1841 were the first of their sex in America to have the privilege of earning such a degree." Since that day the policy of co-education of the sexes has been adopted by all the state universities of the West and the Middle West, by Cornell, Chicago and Stanford, and by most of the smaller colleges founded after Oberlin had led the way. Woman's higher education throughout the world owes much to the fact that seventy years ago a way was found by this pioneer college to give the American girl of that day the same educational privileges that her brother had.

Not only did the college enter upon a marked inheritance of innovation and progressiveness characteristic of the day, but the name "Oberlin" itself was an endowment and a prophecy. John Frederick Oberlin, a humble Alsatian pastor, working for sixty years among the people of Steintal in the Vosges Mountains foreshadowed in many ways the most striking features of modern education. Pastor Oberlin had been directing his work with an intelligence of high order, with aims broad enough to include all sides of his people's lives—good roads, agricultural methods, all types of educational, moral and religious training, backed by invincible will and courage and infused with a spirit radically democratic in conviction.

From the very beginning men who came to Oberlin to teach were scholars of attainment, graduates of Yale, Dartmouth, Williams and Amherst. Honor men in more than one instance, they were proud to cross the Alleghenies and keep alive the torch of learning in the Middle West through restless years. Without qualification it may be said that for three quarters of a century Oberlin has stood for an honest and genuine scholarship and opposed to every form of educational sham, and this has not been the least of her services to the nation. Today to the old inheritance is added a consistent eagerness to share in all that is best in modern social, intellectual and spiritual thought.

In the words of President Henry Churchill King, "From its historic antecedents, from the original plan, from the spirit of those who have shared in the work there followed inevitably for Oberlin College several consequences. The college has stood from the first persistently against the aristocracy of sex, of color, of wealth, and of the clique." President King sums up Oberlin's intellectual and scholastic achievement as follows: "There has been a definite and conscientious facing in the open-minded spirit of the fathers of the facts of natural science and evolution, of the new psychology, of the new science of sociology and of modern developments in philosophy and theology. Oberlin continues her traditions of a world constituency by the establishment in the Province of Shansi in China of a New Oberlin College, the work of the last thirty years, with an enrollment at present of 600 students and a teaching staff of over thirty."

A marked characteristic of the Oberlin undergraduate is his ability to maintain a good scholastic standing while earning his education. Last year, Oberlin men earned $69,076, working in vacation, waiting on table in the college halls, caring for furnaces, washing dishes, canvassing, etc.

Another pronounced feature is the cosmopolitanism of the Oberlin student body. The seventeen hundred students come from every state and territory, from America's island dependencies and from foreign lands. Less than fifty per cent are Ohioans. The foreign countries represented include Albania, Australia, Bohemia, Brazil, China, Cuba, Germany, India, Jamaica, Japan, Mexico, Micronesia, Norway, Persia, South Africa and Turkey.

Athletics have always been legitimately emphasized in Oberlin under-graduate life but from a point of view somewhat different from that of the majority of colleges and universities. The Oberlin ideal is summed up in the phrase "Every man participating in at least one recognized form of outdoor exercise." Nine years ago Oberlin called one of her alumni, C. W. Savage, from Pittsburg, to be director of athletic sports for men, with the rank of a full Professor. Mr. Savage came to Oberlin especially to develop intra-mural sport. He at once began to organize class teams and under his direction student interest in all forms of athletics has been developed to such an extent that class schedules now attract wide attention. At present Mr. Savage and a Faculty committee on athletics are carrying forward a movement to equip Oberlin with the finest college athletic field in the Middle West. It is planned to spend $50,000 on the following schedule: One varsity baseball diamond and three practice diamonds, one varsity football field and three practice fields, one quarter-mile cinder track with a 220-yard straightaway, and eighteen tennis courts. For the accommodation of spectators at football games and track-meets a concrete grand stand and bleachers will be erected giving a total seating capacity of 5,000. The new plan includes more than twenty-five acres of land, and the general work of construction is in charge of Cass Gilbert, the distinguished New York architect, general architect for all Oberlin College buildings, and Olmsted Brothers, landscape architects, of Boston.

With twenty-three alumni associations scattered throughout the United States, and a roster of approximately 38,000 men and women who have studied within her walls during the last three quarters of a century, Oberlin is bound to maintain her influence, always positive, even aggressive, and stands today among the most typical of American institutions of the higher learning. Writing in the Atlantic Monthly, Hamilton W. Mabie says: "It would not be easy to find a more characteristically American community than that which has grown to such large proportions around Oberlin College. Here one finds a life shaped exclusively by American conditions, and absorbed in American interests. Not long ago, an intelligent student of education in this country said that, in his judgment, a dollar went further in purchasing power in Oberlin, than at any other college in the land. It is probable that economy of expenditure and lavishness of opportunity and of work are nowhere more fruitfully united.

At Oberlin, education instinctively shapes itself for immediate ends in the needs of the time and the community; and in the courses of study and in the interest and tastes of the students one finds a keen sense of the utility of studies for practical uses."

WILBERFORCE UNIVERSITY. Ohio has the honor of having the leading university in America for the higher education of the colored race. Wilberforce University, near Xenia, established before the Civil War, and which is not only the greatest but the oldest institution of learning of this character in the country. While the Negro was deprived for many years of public school advantages in Ohio, he was not lacking in a desire to educate his children and the first private Negro school in this state was opened in Cincinnati in 1820, but soon failed. It was re-opened in 1832 and was largely conducted by students from Lane Seminary. The seminary authorities then prohibited the teaching of Negro pupils by students of Lane and fifty-one students withdrew from the seminary and entered Oberlin College. Through their influence Oberlin was opened to Negro students in 1835, and James Bradley, a Negro of Cincinnati, who entered Oberlin College soon after, was the first Ohio colored college student. The first move to furnish a seminary for the colored race in Ohio originated with Daniel A. Payne, a self-educated Negro of Charleston, S. C., which resulted in Union Seminary near Columbus being organized in 1844; Wilberforce University was the outgrowth of this institution. In 1853, the Cincinnati conference of the M. E. Church decided to establish a college for the higher education of the colored race. In 1856, Tawawa Springs (Sweet water) a summer resort was purchased and named Wilberforce University in honor of the great English statesman, William Wilberforce. The grounds comprised fifty-two acres, and of the twenty-four trustees four were colored. Bishop Daniel A. Payne being one; Governor Salmon P. Chase served as one of the twenty-four. Rev. M. P. Gaddes was made principal. He was succeeded by Prof. James K. Parker in 1857. In 1859, Rev. Richard T. Rust, a white minister, was made its first president. The Civil War blighted the prospects of this institution and it suspended in June, 1862. Bishop Payne came to the relief of the institution when it was about to be sold for debt, and his pledge of $10,000 saved the property to his race. Dr. Payne then became president and held that position thirteen years. Just as the university seemed to be about to enter a new era of prosperity, on April 14, 1865, the day that the great emancipator, Lincoln, was assassinated, some miscreant set fire to the main building at Wilberforce and it was destroyed. Through the efforts of Dr. Payne by congressional appropriations and by bequests, the institution was again saved, and it is now on a solid foundation and ranks as one of the first small colleges in the country for white or black.

The present president Dr. W. S. Scarborough, graduate of Oberlin College, took that position in 1908, and is probably the most learned colored man in America, and through his untiring energy and efforts the institution today is in a flourishing and prosperous condition. It has a Normal and Industrial Department located in a tract of about three hundred acres owned by the State, adjoining the fifty-two acres originally purchased by the university. The state owns the grounds and buildings, and of the nine trustees of the Normal and Industrial Department, the Governor appoints five, Wilberforce University trustees select three and the president of the university is ex-officio the ninth member of the board, and today there are thirty-two teachers and nearly five hundred students. The three departments—Wilberforce University, Payne Theological Seminary and the Normal and Industrial Department—occupy twelve large brick buildings, including an $18,000 Library Building, a gift of Mr. Carnegie. The value of the grounds, buildings, and equipment is over $500,000. Wilberforce Normal and Industrial Department has not a superior in the state and no other school can offer such advantages to its white students at twice the expense. Colored students from Ohio pay no tuition, room rent or incidentals, their only expense being for clothing, books, and $2.00 per week for board. Thus the colored students have a rare opportunity to secure college training at an astoundingly low cost.

Wilberforce University students can receive instruction in the following course of study: Classical, Scientific, Academic, Normal, Teacher Training, Theological, Music, English Preparatory, Military, Art, Business, Sewing, Carpentry, Printing, Cooking, Shoemaking, Blacksmithing, Wheelwrighting, Brick-making and Brick-laying, Plumbing, Tailoring, Applied Mechanics and Millinery, and new departments are being added from year to year.

The influence of Wilberforce on the mental, social and moral welfare of the colored race not only of Ohio but of the whole world, is incalculable.

THE COLLEGE OF WOOSTER (otherwise known as The University of Wooster). The earliest action looking toward the establishment of The University of Wooster was taken in 1847, by the Synod of Ohio (Presbyterian), when a committee was appointed to study and report. The first charter was taken out December 18, 1866. The organization was brought about by the joint action of the Synods of Ohio, Cincinnati, and Sandusky, with the "hearty God-speed" of the Synod of Cleveland. All these Synods became united in 1870 as the Synod of Ohio, covering the State. To this united Synod fell the control of the University, now called, more properly, The College of Wooster. In 1901 a change in the charter made more secure the tenure by the Synod of Ohio. In 1914 a change in the charter allowed the interchange of University and College in the corporate name.

The cornerstone was laid June 30, 1868, and the first building was dedicated Sept. 7, 1870. The College Department was opened the same day. The Preparatory Department was opened Sept. 18, 1872, the Musical Department Sept. 13, 1882, the Bible and Missionary Training School Sept. 16, 1903, the Commercial Department Sept. 16, 1904, and the Summer School in June, 1895.

The great, main building burned Dec. 11, 1901, and one year from that day five of the present excellent buildings were dedicated. The Chapel was dedicated March 5, 1902, the Library was completed November 6, 1906, Holden Hall (second dormitory for women), was opened September, 1907, Kenarden Lodge (dormitory for young men), was completed September 1, 1911, and the L. H. Severance Gymnasium April 1, 1912. The L. H. Severance Athletic Field was dedicated May 22, 1915.

The first Board of Trustees were Rev. John Robinson, D. D., LL. D., President, Ashland; Rev. William R. Marshall D. D., Columbus; Rev. Henry M. Hervey, Newark; Rev. John H. Pratt, D. D., Athens; Henry A. True, M. D., Marion; Rev. James A. Reed, D. D., Wooster; Ephraim Quinby, Wooster; John H. Kauke, Wooster; David Robinson, Jr., late of Toledo; Resin B. Stibbs, Wooster; Leander Firestone, M. D., LL. D., Wooster; John McClellan, Wooster; Lucas Flattery, Wooster; Rev. John B. Stewart, D. D., Cincinnati; Rev. William W. Colmery, D. D., Monroe; Rev. Henry W. Taylor, Franklin; Edward Taylor, M. D., Cleveland; Rev. Morris Cross, D. D., Findlay, and Rev. Edwin B. Raffenberger, D. D., Toledo. The Board was later enlarged to thirty men in addition to the President of the College. The Presidents of the College have been Rev. Willis Lord, D. D., LL. D., 1870-73; Rev. A. A. E. Taylor, D. D., LL. D., 1873-83; Rev. Sylvester F. Scovel, D. D., LL. D., 1883-99; Rev. Louis E. Holden, D. D., LL. D., 1899-1915, and Mr. J. Campbell White, LL. D., since 1915.

The College of Wooster stands for both a wholesome and a whole education. The charter defines its object as "the promotion of sound learning and education under religious influences." Standing for a broad, liberal culture the College is at the same time positively and frankly Christian, with a cooperative and catholic spirit that is far removed from narrow sectarianism. For the physical man every provision has been made that money and skill could develop, in sanitary and fire-proof buildings, gymnasium and athletic fields. The so-called practical side is shown in the two science buildings with their laboratories, said by experts, to be unexcelled for college work. The departments of study are Bible and Missionary Instruction, Biology, Botany, Chemistry, Education, English Literature, French, Geology, German, Greek, History, Latin, Mathematics including Applied Mathematics and Astronomy, Music, Oratory, Philosophy and Psychology, Physical Education, Physics, Political Science, Rhetoric and English Composition, and Spanish. The College is first class, standard, recognized, and accredited. It ranks near the top in inter-collegiate athletics. It ranks high in oratorical honors. In inter-collegiate debates Wooster has won 18 out of 22 debates with other strong colleges. In Christian and educational service it is known and felt around the world. The College of Wooster gets no help from taxation. Indeed it is one of the big tax savers. Free gifts of friends have built her stately walls and endowments. She now has 100 acres of beautiful campus, well equipped buildings of harmony in architecture and symmetry in arrangement, worth $1,221,743.60, productive endowment of $1,203,301.25 and total assets, May 31, 1916, of $2,620,597.71. The Library has 43,000 volumes of which 40,563 are bound volumes.

There are enrolled this year, 1916-17, 796 students, representing 27 states, and 75 are from 16 foreign countries. There are 92 Seniors, 162 Sophomores, 229 Freshmen, total college 566, and Conservatory 162. In each of these figures all previous records are broken. The College Department enrollment runs, the last five years, 435, 433, 440, 517 and 566. There were, in addition, 1281 in the Summer School of 1916. The net total of graduates is 1944, more than 50 per cent, of whom have gone into altruistic service for mankind, as teachers and Christian leaders.

CASE SCHOOL OF APPLIED SCIENCE, CLEVELAND, OHIO. Leonard Case, the founder of Case School of Applied Science, on the 24th of February, 1877, executed a trust deed setting apart certain lands to endow and establish a scientific school in the City of Cleveland. Mr. Case was a graduate of Yale University, a man of great mathematical and literary ability, and he wished to see established in his own city an institution of learning which would train men for the great industrial life of the country. After the death of Mr. Case in 1880 the necessary steps were taken to secure a legal incorporation. The preamble to the articles of incorporation is as follows:

"WHEREAS, Leonard Case, late of the City of Cleveland, now deceased, in his lifetime conveyed and assured to Henry G. Abbey, by deeds dated February 24, 1877, and October 16, 1879, certain real estate therein described, and upon the limitations, conditions and trusts therein fully expressed, and thereby directed the said Henry G. Abbey, immediately upon his death, to cause to be formed and regularly incorporated under the laws of Ohio, an institution of learning, to be called 'The Case School of Applied Science,' located in said City of Cleveland, in which should be taught, by competent professors and teachers, Mathematics, Physics, Engineering—Mechanical and Civil, Economic Geology, Mining and Metallurgy, Natural History, Drawing, and Modern Languages; and immediately upon the regular organization of such corporation to convey by sufficient deed in fee simple and free and clear of all incumbrances whatever, the said premises to such corporation, to be held and enjoyed by it in perpetuity for the sole and only purpose of collecting and receiving the rents, issues, and profits thereof, and applying the same or the proceeds of said property, to the necessary cost and expenses of providing for and carrying forward in a thorough and efficient manner the teaching above named; and such other kindred branches of learning as the Trustees of said institution should deem advisable and to the payment of such other cost and expenses as might be necessary for the general uses and purposes of such an institution."

In 1881 instruction was begun on a limited scale in the Case homestead on Rockwell Street and continued there until June, 1885. In September, 1885, the School was transferred to the new building on Euclid Avenue opposite Wade Park. The growth of the School made new laboratories necessary and these have been built as they were needed.

At present the institution has seven buildings devoted to educational purposes. These are a main building, in which is located the civil engineering department, the geological department and the departments of mathematics and modern languages; a physics laboratory given by Mr. John D. Rockefeller; an electrical engineering laboratory; a mechanical engineering laboratory; a mining engineering laboratory the gift of Mr. John D. Rockefeller; and a combined gymnasium and club.

The course of study for the first year is the same for all students and consists of those subjects which are necessary in every department of engineering. The course for the sophomore year is nearly the same for all courses while in the junior and senior years the students devote themselves largely to the special engineering work which they have selected. The engineering courses offered are as follows: Civil engineering, mechanical engineering, electrical engineering, mining engineering, metallurgical engineering, physics, and chemical engineering. Each course is four years in length and leads to the degree of Bachelor of Science in civil engineering and so forth. Instruction is given by means of lectures, recitations, laboratory work and field work. One-half of each day is devoted to academic work in the class room and the other half of the day is given to practical work in the field, the laboratory, or the drawing room.

The month of June is a practice term during which time there are no recitations but the men are doing practical work the whole day. All of the freshmen go into camp and study surveying. There is a complete outfit of tents, surveying instruments, dining equipment, and so forth, and the men live as they would if they were surveying a railroad in a new country. At the end of the sophomore year those who intend to specialize in railroad engineering go into camp and lay out a short railroad under the direction of a practical railroad engineer. All the work, from the original reconnaissance to the setting of grade stakes for the contractor is completed. Those who intend to study mining engineering go to a mine and practice mine surveying. The students in other departments have work in the laboratories at college. At the end of the junior year the students in civil engineering study practical astronomy by which they learn how to locate points on the earth's surface by means of the stars. The mining engineers go to mines in the Black Hills or in Arizona or California. The mechanical engineering students work with the steam engines in the mechanical engineering laboratory; the electrical students work with the dynamos and motors in the electrical laboratory; the chemists spend a large part of the time during the practice term in the chemical laboratory.

Since the institution was founded fifteen hundred men have been graduated. Nearly all of these graduates are doing engineering work. They are located in almost every state of the union and in many foreign countries. There is a constantly growing demand for the graduates.

MOUNT UNION COLLEGE, located at Alliance, Ohio, was founded October 20, 1846, by Dr. Orville Nelson Hartshorn. This school was of seminary grade until January 10, 1858, when it was chartered as a college, since which time it has consistently and without cessation, devoted itself to the ideals of a college of liberal arts and sciences. Dr. Hartshorn was president until 1888, when he was succeeded by Dr. T. P. Marsh, who served until 1898, when he was succeeded by Dr. A. B. Riker who also served as president for a decade, being succeeded in 1908 by Dr. W. H. McMaster.

Mount Union College in 1911 was combined with Scio College, the alumni of the latter institution being adopted by the combined institution. Mount Union College is a member of the Ohio College Association, of the Association of American Colleges, of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, the Ohio Athletic Conference, and of the National Educational Association, is on the "Approved List" of the North Central Association of Colleges and in "Group A" of the University Senate.

The following gentlemen are members of the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees: Col. W. H. Morgan, W. M. Ellett, W. H. Ramsey, David Fording, Esq., O. F. Transue, W. L. Hart, Esq., Dr. C. S. Hoover, Dr. P. F. King, Dr. J. W. Moore, F. E. Dussell and W. H. McMaster.

Mount Union College has graduated from the Liberal Arts courses, 1581. Alumni Associations are permanently organized in Cleveland, New York, Pittsburgh, Columbus, Detroit, Chicago, Canton, Uniontown, Youngstown and Boston.

The city of Alliance takes great interest in the work of Mount Union College and the College is devoting itself to many forms of civic welfare. The Mount Union College Women's Club has rendered faithful service to the College and has done much toward binding the city and the college together in mutual helpfulness.

OTTERBEIN UNIVERSITY, Westerville, Ohio, coeducational, was founded in 1847. It is under the control of the United Brethren Church, but is not limited to sectarian training. It is the oldest institution of the United Brethren Church, and was founded by Dr. Lewis Davis, who is also recognized as the father of higher education in the denomination.

The College has always had a liberal policy as to administrative control and educational practice. There are three orders of trustees, the conference trustees, the trustees at large, elected by the trustees, and the Alumni trustees. None of these, excepting those elected by the conferences, need be members of the denomination. There are always a number of different churches represented in the Board.

Educationally the College has pursued a broad, liberal arts curriculum. It has never departed from this policy for the mere fads and fancies of educational practice. However, there is a strong tendency at the present to put a more practical emphasis upon its work, and a new policy has been adopted by the Board, looking toward its adaptation to modern educational demands.

Through a permanent commission appointed by the Board of Trustees two years ago a working policy has been submitted to the Board and adopted, which aims to give a practical turn to the new courses as they may be introduced. This will occur by placing on the future work of the College two new and distinct emphases; both of them practical; one on applied Christianity and one on applied science. The former will include new courses in Bible and Missions, administration of religious education and social service of various forms. The latter, courses in domestic science, elementary agriculture, rural life problems, and courses introductory and preparatory to work in various forms of engineering. It will be broad enough to include also foundation courses in business administration, business law and commercial economics.

From its founding, the Institution has maintained a sturdy attitude toward the cardinal social evils, such as slavery and intemperance and the use of tobacco. It has fostered a spirit of social democracy which has prevented the introduction of fraternities and sororities.

On the other hand, all forms of healthy sports and athletics are encouraged. There is a free and healthy mingling of the young men and women within reasonable restrictions.

Otterbein is a member of the Ohio College Association, of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools and of the Association of American Colleges.

It aims in every respect to bring all its work up to accepted educational standards.

Otterbein enjoys the distinction of having been the first institution in the world to admit women on an equality with men. Among its early graduates was Benjamin R. Hanly, author of "Darling Nellie Gray." Mrs. Lillian R. Harford, President of the National Young Women's Christian Association, is also a graduate. H. Clay Frick, prominent financier, was a former student.

The institution is composed of a college of liberal arts, an Academy and Music and Art Departments. The student attendance is about 600, including the Summer School. The faculty numbers thirty.

There are seven buildings, most of them modern, and forty acres of ground. The Alumni numbers 1293. The most substantial and rapid growth of the institution has taken place in the last ten years.

Believing that the function of the institution is strictly collegiate, the trustees have passed a resolution providing for the change of the name "University" to "College."

BOWLING GREEN STATE NORMAL COLLEGE. In 1910 the General Assembly passed an act authorizing the Governor to appoint a commission to locate two new normal schools, one in Northeastern Ohio and one in Northwestern Ohio. This commission chose Bowling Green as the location of the school for Northwestern Ohio. On June 30, 1911, the Board of Trustees, appointed by the Governor, organized and on February 16, 1912, elected the President of the College. A general building plan was adopted and with the initial appropriation of $150,000 the Board proceeded with the construction of the central feature of the plant—the Administration Building. In 1913 the General Assembly appropriated $41,000 for enlarging the auditorium and gymnasium in the Administration Building, and $218,000 for the erection of a dormitory for women, science building, and heating plant. Other available funds were added to the appropriation for the heating plant, making the total cost of this building and equipment $50,000. In 1915, $100,000 was appropriated for a training school building.

On September 15, 1914, the College opened in temporary quarters with a faculty of fifteen members including four critic teachers. During the year 1914-15 a branch school was conducted in Toledo, the city training school having been discontinued. In September 1915, the faculty was increased to twenty-four members and in September, 1916, to thirty members.

Officers: The first Board of Trustees, appointed by the Governor, was constituted as follows: John Begg, Columbus Grove, Ohio; D. C. Brown, Napoleon, Ohio; J. E. Collins, Lima, Ohio; D. T. Davis, Findlay, Ohio; J. D. McDonel, Fostoria, Ohio. The members of the present Board are: J. E. Collins, Lima, Ohio; E. H. Ganz, Fremont, Ohio; J. D. McDonel, Fostoria, Ohio; F. E. Reynolds, Wapakoneta, Ohio; J. E. Shatzel, Bowling Green, Ohio. Dr. H. B. Williams, President of the College, was elected February 16, 1912.

Buildings and Grounds: The Normal College Grounds are located in the eastern part of the city at the end of Court Street. The campus of eighty-two and a half acres affords ample space for agricultural experiments, school gardens, and nature study excursions. Four large fire-proof buildings have been completed which rank among the best college buildings in the entire country. They are the Administration Building, Williams Hall, the Science Building, and the Central Heating Plant.

The Administration Building, in addition to a large auditorium, gymnasium, and offices, contains over twenty-five class rooms.

The Science Building affords every modern convenience for the teaching of Agriculture, Science, and Industrial Arts.

The Dormitory furnishes accommodations for over a hundred women students. It is provided with a laundry for the use of students, social rooms, and a large dining room seating over two hundred persons.

The Central Heating Plant is connected with each of the buildings by a tunnel system and furnishes steam for heat and power.

In addition to these buildings the state has appropriated $100,000 for a modern Training School building which is now (1917) in process of construction. This will be a model elementary school building in which ample provision has been made for all the newer school activities. The total outlay for the complete plant inclusive of buildings and grounds approximates $700,000.

Function and Scope of the Normal College: In order to furnish adequate training for all classes of teachers, the State Normal College maintains the following courses:

1—A one-year professional course for college graduates. 2—Four-year courses leading to the B. S. degree in Education for supervisors, superintendents, and principals, and for teachers of the various high school subjects. 3—A two-year diploma course for grade teachers in city and village schools, permitting emphasis on primary or grammar grade work in accordance with the needs of the teachers. 4—A two-year diploma course for rural teachers. 5—A two-year diploma course for teachers of each of the following special subjects: Agriculture, Industrial Arts, Home Economics, and Music.

Requirements for Graduation: Only one degree is conferred by the College, the Bachelor of Science in Education.

The College grants diplomas in Agriculture, Elementary Education, Home Economics, Industrial Arts, and Music.

Bachelor of Science in Education: 1—Candidates who are graduates of approved colleges may receive this degree upon the completion of thirty semester hours of professional work. 2—Other candidates for this degree must (a) meet the entrance requirements, (b) complete at least one year of work in residence at the College, (c) attain the full amount of credit by work done in the College or by advanced standing, as outlined in one of the degree courses.

Diplomas: Candidates for a diploma must (a) meet the entrance requirements, (b) complete at least one semester of work in residence at the College, (c) attain the full amount of credit by work done in the College or by advanced standing, as outlined in one of the diploma courses.

Summer School: The Normal College maintains a summer school consisting of two six weeks' terms. The work offered in these terms is as a rule, half-courses, that is, half of one of the regular courses and thus enables teachers to make continuous progress toward a diploma or degree.

Extension Department: The Normal College, in order to meet adequately and effectively the needs of teachers and supervisors in service maintains an Extension Department offering several types of work. It has endeavored to adjust these types of work to meet specific needs.

Training School: The Normal College maintains a Training School and arrangements have been made to use the entire city school system for student-teaching, thus affording ample opportunity for the training of a large number of teachers each year.

For those preparing to become teachers in rural schools, three model rural schools are maintained by the College for student-teaching and observation, and others will be added as they are needed.

Development: The outstanding features of the Bowling Green State Normal College are its rapid growth both in respect to physical plant and student-body, and the high quality of its work. In the brief period of three years, four large buildings have been erected and equipped, and the institution has taken high rank among the leading teachers' colleges of the nation. To a very large degree this success and rapid development has been due to the master mind of President Williams who has the rare faculty of grasping in a broad gauged manner the needs and requirements of such an institution, and with a capacity for work possessed by few men, every detail of the physical equipment as well as the educational developments have passed under his supervision and scrutiny and by gathering about him a strong faculty he has in a short time produced wonderful results.

OHIO WESLEYAN UNIVERSITY was founded at Delaware, Ohio, under the patronage of the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1841, when an Academy was started on the original property. In 1844 the College of Liberal Arts began its work and in 1877 the Ohio Wesleyan Female College, a separate institution, was incorporated in the University. Since this time the University has been coeducational.

Since its foundation the University has maintained the Academy in which college preparatory work is given, and has added a Conservatory, into which the School of Music and School of Fine Arts were both incorporated in 1877, and a School of Oratory, which was organized as a part of the College in 1894.

The campus grounds are divided into three parts. The main buildings are located on what is known as the University Campus and are six in number. University Hall and Gray Chapel, in which are located administrative offices, class rooms and auditoriums; Slocum Library, with capacity for 175,000 volumes, reading rooms and class rooms; Sturges Hall, headquarters for Chemistry department; Edwards Gymnasium, modern equipped and second to none in size in Ohio; Merrick Hall, used by Geology and Biology departments; Elliott Hall, in which are the laboratories and class rooms of the Physics and Engineering department, constitute the group on University Campus.

On Monnett Campus is located Monnett Hall, a dormitory for women, with rooms and accommodations for 250; Sanborn Hall, in which are located class rooms, practice rooms, and auditorium of the School of Music; and Lyon Hall, the home of the art department and domestic science classes.

The Barnes Campus is the location of Perkins Astronomical Observatory, which is equipped with the very latest and finest instruments for practice and study; Barnes House, partially for class room purposes; and Hartupee House, a dormitory for women.

The Ohio Wesleyan University is largely maintained by gifts from various sources. The endowment of $1,038,000 is being steadily enlarged and the equipment valued at $765,000 will be increased by half a million within two years. From the standpoint of the student the tuition rates are so low that much over one-half of the actual cost of educating each student is borne by the University.

As its charter declares, the "University is forever to be conducted on the most liberal principles, accessible to all religious denominations, and designed for the benefit of our citizens in general." It is in no sense sectarian and makes no denominational requirements of its students, faculty or trustees.

The University has always endeavored to maintain high scholastic standards and at the present time is one of seventy-five institutions placed in the first class by the United States Bureau of Education.

The student body has made some beginnings in self-government. The Student Council is the instrument thru which the body of students expresses its will in matters of general interest. The Honor Court, established by the students, handles all cases of dishonesty in class room work and recommends discipline. The women have an organized government at Monnett.

Ohio Wesleyan students enter into intercollegiate relations with other students in athletics, debate, and oratory. The athletics have been so managed that a great many undergraduates have been induced to play on various teams. Interclass sports are well developed.

Dr. David S. Gray, of Columbus, is the president of the Board of Trustees and Dr. John Washington Hoffman is president of the University.

WESTERN RESERVE UNIVERSITY. In 1817 the Presbytery of Grand River, which embraced nearly all the Presbyterian and Congregational ministers and churches of the Western Reserve of Connecticut, formed a Society for the education of young men for the ministry within the limits of the Presbytery. When the new Presbyteries of Portage and Huron were created by a subdivision of Grand River Presbytery, similar educational societies were formed. At first they confined their efforts to assisting worthy students studying privately with ministers or attending the Erie Literary Society's School, which had been opened at Burton in 1820, but in 1824, becoming dissatisfied with the conditions at Burton, they appointed commissioners to establish a literary and theological institution which could better carry out their purposes. In choosing a location, the commissioners were instructed to take into view all circumstances of situation, moral character, facility of communications, donations, health, etc. They seem to have considered the merits of Burton, Aurora, Euclid, Cleveland, and Hudson for the site of the proposed school. Cleveland was at the time an insignificant and unhealthy river town and Hudson seemed to be the best location for a country college. It was a day nearer Pittsburg and the East by the main thoroughfare of the period, and in order to secure the college it presented a stronger claim by subscribing seven thousand one hundred and fifty dollars; in addition it offered one hundred and sixty acres of land for a site. A board of trustees, composed of seven clergymen and seven laymen was organized in 1825, and a charter secured from the State of Ohio, February 7, 1826. Other subscriptions made by churches throughout the Western Reserve provided the additional funds needed to construct the first building, called "Middle College," which was completed in August, 1827.

In the meantime the first students, three in number, were receiving instruction at Talmage in December, 1826, under a temporary tutor. Western Reserve College opened in Hudson in the autumn of 1827, when a preparatory department was also organized. A department of Theology was established in 1830 and maintained until 1852. In 1843 a Medical School was organized in Cleveland. The college charter contained no ecclesiastical limitations, and financial necessities forced the trustees to look for a larger constituency, with the result that the denominational character of the college gradually disappeared.

During the Hudson period, the endowment, student body and faculty grew very slowly. The absence of regular, stable, and adequate channels of support and the proximity of numerous other colleges stood in the way of rapid development. After the Civil War economic conditions in the North changed rapidly, and the trustees became convinced that the city possessed certain advantages over the country as a seat for a growing college thoroughly equipped to meet modern conditions. The city of Cleveland was close at hand and was developing into a great industrial center, while some of its citizens were hoping to possess a university and a technical school. In view of this situation, in March, 1880, Amasa Stone, of Cleveland, offered the college five hundred thousand dollars upon the following conditions: that it be removed to Cleveland, that it occupy a suitable site to be given by citizens, and that its name be changed to "Adelbert College of Western Reserve University." This name was to be a memorial to Mr. Stone's only son, Adelbert Stone, who had been drowned while a student at Yale College. The offer was accepted, and in September, 1862, Adelbert College opened its doors on a new campus of twenty-two acres, opposite a park which had been given to the city by Jephtha H. Wade. Two buildings were erected, one for purposes of instruction, with central offices, chapel, library and museum; the other for a dormitory and refectory.

The trustees incorporated the Western Reserve University in 1884 to organize, establish and maintain in said city of Cleveland a university for the promotion of learning by means of Departments of Medicine, of Philosophy, of Art, of Music, and of such other means as may be deemed advisable by the Board of Trustees of the corporation. A College for Women, a Graduate School, and the professional schools of Law, Dentistry, Library Science and Pharmacy have since been organized. In 1915 were founded the School of Education; Summer Session, and the School of Applied Social Sciences. The total enrollment in the fall of 1916 was 2210.

CEDARVILLE COLLEGE, Cedarville, Ohio. was opened for instruction in 1894. It has educated nearly two thousand young men and women of the United States and other countries. It is coeducational. It gives all the modern collegiate courses. The location is beautiful and healthful. The environment is eminently moral and elevating. Expenses are very reasonable.

Cedarville College is recognized by the Public Department of Instruction of Ohio and by the leading universities of our country.

The president is Dr. W. R. McChesney. The faculty consists of eleven trained college and university men and women.

The College is under the care of the General Synod of the Reformed Presbyterian Church. It is open to all young people of all faiths.

HEIDELBERG UNIVERSITY, located at Tiffin, Ohio, is one of the oldest institutions of learning in the Middle West. It was opened to students on November 11, 1850. The school was established and has been fostered by the Reformed Church in the United States. While attached to a religious denomination, the institution is in no sense sectarian. Its courses are liberal and students of all religious beliefs receive equal consideration and equal opportunities.

This institution, as now organized, includes the College of Liberal Arts, the Academy, the Department of Pedagogy, the Department of Oratory, the Conservatory of Music, and the Art Department. The Commercial Department has been recently discontinued.

This institution has done faithful work throughout the years, turning out annually those who have done much to advance the work of the world, not only in Ohio, but throughout the length and breadth of the United States. During the past few years under the direction of its energetic President, Charles E. Miller, it has taken wonderful strides not only in the increased attendance of students but also in the general equipment of the institution and the standards of work done. Heidelberg is one of the standard colleges in Ohio belonging, ever since its organization, to The Ohio College Association. Heidelberg is also a member of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. In 1901, when President Miller assumed the office of President, there were five buildings, eight acres of campus, an annual budget of $13,700, and an enrollment of 314. In 1917 there are ten buildings, twenty acres of campus, an annual budget of about $45,000, and an enrollment of nearly 700.

Among the buildings recently erected are Willard Hall, one of the best equipped Women's buildings in the Middle West; a new Science building, and a new Library building. These three buildings have had a wonderful influence in transforming the life and work of the institution.

The Conservatory of Music has in the past few years also made wonderful progress. The methods employed both in voice and on the organ, piano and violin, are the most modern and progressive and there is no doubt but that the character of work now being done in this department is deserving of the great appreciation already manifested by the rapid increase in students.

This institution is aiming to give a thorough preparation for life's responsibilities, laying deep the foundations of culture. It seeks to send young men and women out into the world not only equipped with knowledge but also established in moral principle. It does not pretend to do what it is not equipped to do. It is not a technical school; but much of the work done at technical schools of engineering, etc., in the first two years can be done profitably at Heidelberg, at a lower expense and amid better moral surroundings.

The standards of Heidelberg are everywhere recognized and her credits have been received without question when taken for advance work at Yale, Harvard, Columbia, Chicago, and other universities of similar rank. The institution has a peculiar field in Northwestern Ohio since no school of similar standards and having the same general purposes is found in that part of the State.

A movement is now on to enlarge the endowment, erect a new men's dormitory and to provide a modern gymnasium. When these objects have been attained the future of this institution will indeed be bright.

DEFIANCE COLLEGE, located at Defiance, fifty miles southwest of Toledo, is one of the youngest, as well as one of the most progressive colleges of Ohio. Although by special act of the general assembly of the state in 1850 an institution known as the Defiance Female Seminary had been incorporated, and a large college building had been erected in 1884, various attempts to conduct a school of learning had ended in failure. So that the history of Defiance College really begins in 1902, when, under the enthusiastic leadership of Rev. P. W. McReynolds, D. D., the newly elected president, the school was reopened (with five teachers and thirty-three students) an active campaign to raise $30,000 for endowment and equipment was begun, the charter was changed from the Defiance Female Seminary to the Defiance College, and the new institution was brought under the fostering care of the Ohio State Christian Association.

Since that time the growth has been uniform and rapid. Instead of five instructors, the faculty now numbers twenty-five, university-trained teachers; instead of thirty-three students the last annual enrollment (including the summer school) was 602 different students; instead of one building on the campus there are now six, four large college buildings, a President's residence costing $7,000, and a modern central heating plant just completed at a cost of nearly $20,000. In 1902 the total value of building, equipment, lands, and endowment, was about $35,000, now the resources of Defiance College amount to more than half a million dollars.

In 1907 the Christian Biblical Institute, a theological seminary located at Stanfordville, New York, was removed to the campus of Defiance College, where the two institutions worked in close affiliation and hearty cooperation together until 1916, when they were united, the Christian Biblical Institute taking the name of the Christian Divinity School.

At the present time Defiance College includes the following departments: the Divinity School the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, the Department of Music, the Department of Education, the Household Arts Department, and the Preparatory and Commercial Departments. Its work has been fully approved by the State Department of Public Instruction, and it enjoys cooperative relations with several universities such that combination arts and professional courses are offered.

The College has sought to meet the educational needs of that part of the state in which it is situated, and it has wielded a wholesome educational influence throughout Northwestern Ohio as well as within the denomination which it represents. From the beginning the institution has emphasized the importance of high intellectual standards of wholesome Christian ideals with careful attention to student discipline and of making it possible for the student of moderate means to secure educational training. That the college has been successful in maintaining these high standards is the enthusiastic testimony of those who are acquainted with its present character and achievement.

Of course, the real test of the efficiency of Defiance College will not be found in the testimony of friends nor in material equipment, but in the hundreds of students whom it has trained for service, and especially in those who have graduated, for an educational institution shall be known by its alumni. A study of the list of graduates of Defiance College and of the Divinity School (since it has been located at Defiance) reveals some interesting facts. Out of the total number of graduates of these institutions, which is 192, 28 are married women, 38 are ministers or missionaries and 101 are teachers. In other words fourteen per cent of the graduates are homemakers, twenty per cent are ministers and nearly fifty-three per cent are teachers. Thus an unusually large per cent of the alumni hold positions of large and positive influence.

TOLEDO UNIVERSITY. Toledo University, the Municipal University of Toledo, Ohio, was founded in 1872 as the Toledo University of Arts and Trades by Jessup D. Scott, who bequeathed to the University several tracts of land among which was a quarter section lying just outside of the city limits. In 1884 the University was established as a Municipal University and in 1909 was re-organized. Since the date of its re-organization the University has had a steady development. Its income from taxation has been increased from $3,000 to approximately $143,000 per year. It now has six colleges: the College of Arts and Sciences, the Teachers' College, College of Commerce and Business, College of Industrial Sciences, College of Law and the College of Pharmacy. In two of these colleges, the Law and Pharmacy, a modest tuition fee is charged while the other colleges are practically free. The attendance has grown from about one hundred to over one thousand students. The instructional staff now numbers twenty-three full time instructors and forty-three part time instructors.

The University is under the control of a Board of Directors of nine members, three appointed for a term of six years every two years. The President of the Board of Directors is William H. Tucker, the Secretary, J. Gazzam Mackenzie. The administrative officers of the University are A. Monroe Stowe, Ph. D., President; A. W. Trettien, Ph. D., Acting-Dean of the Teachers' College; T. L. Kibler, Ph. D., Dean of the College of Commerce and Business; F. H. Evans, M. A., Dean of the College of Industrial Science; A. B. Cohn, LL. B., Dean of the College of Law; W. McK. Reed, Ph. G., Dean of the College of Pharmacy, and Robert N. Whiteford, Ph. D., Director of Graduate Study.

Ohio City Organizations

CLEVELAND, when the 1910 census was taken, was the sixth city in the United States in point of population with 569,563 inhabitants. Conservative estimates of the population the first of 1917 placed the figure between 700,000 and 800,000. Those figures speak for the rapidity of its growth. Proof of the healthy, stable nature of its expansion is found in its ranking among American cities on the basis of output of manufactured products. The manufacturing census as well as the capita census shows Cleveland sixth city. Manufacturing advantages. Those two words epitomize the reasons for its growth in the past and its confidence that the 1920 census figures will show a million inhabitants.

Situated at the mouth of the Cuyahoga river and on the banks of Lake Erie, with seven trunk railway lines running through its heart, Cleveland has easy access to materials and markets, to complement its location and transportation facilities it rightfully boasts low costs of water supply, fuel and power and good factory sites and buildings; first-class banking facilities; a plentiful supply of good labor and good living conditions for labor; reasonable taxes and efficient municipal service.

Cleveland's market is readily appreciable when one realizes that more than one-half of the total population of the United States and Canada lies within a radius of 500 miles of the sixth city and trains bring you to Cleveland over night from the Mississippi river or the Atlantic seaboard.

Reaching out by water and rail Cleveland easily draws in from nearby sources great supplies of iron ore, copper, stone, lumber, hides, oils, wool and other raw materials. Huge furnaces which rear their red heads along the banks of river and lake mark the great trysting places where coal from the greatest soft coal deposits in the world meets iron ore from the greatest iron ore deposits. This continual merging of the minerals from the Lake Superior region and the Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio mines has made Cleveland a pig-iron center. And the manufacture of finished and semi-finished steel products is increasing rapidly.

Some of the elements which facilitate transportation are a nineteen mile belt line encircling the city and connecting with each of the seven trunk line roads; thirty-nine freight stations which cut drayage cost and delay down to the minimum; six electric interurban railway systems all of which carry express and two of which carry freight; overnight boat freight service to Detroit and Buffalo and general lake freight service which brings about a rate on rail freight lower than inland cities.

The thrift of the Cleveland and his prosperity is shown by a $353 per capita savings deposit figure and the fact that savings deposits alone in Cleveland banks in January, 1917, reached a quarter of a billion. The Fourth District Federal Reserve Bank is located in Cleveland.

Bankers attribute the great stability of local financial conditions to the diversity of Cleveland industries which causes a temporary depression in any one class of industries to be offset by the prosperity in other lines.

This diversity of industry, too, is responsible for the fact that Cleveland has an excellent supply of high-grade labor at all times without much unemployment even in times of industrial depression. Some idea of this diversity can be gained from a list of a few of the products in the manufacture of which Cleveland either leads the country or takes high rank, i. e., dry batteries, electric carbons, nuts and bolts, wire and nails, astronomical instruments, automobiles and automobile parts, women's outer garments, ships, sheet metals, metal stamping, oils, paints and varnishes, tools, stoves, knit goods, hoisting and conveying machinery, electric lamps, cigars, chemicals, carriage hardware, paper boxes, drop forgings, castings and printing.

Lake Erie assures Cleveland a comfortable climate and its death rate is lower than that of any other city in the world with a population over 500,000. Slightly less than half the homes in the city are owned by their inhabitants and the "roomy" layout of the metropolis leaves practically no area of congestion.

The park and boulevard system—twenty-two hundred acres of parks and forty-three miles of boulevards—is dotted with playgrounds and athletic fields, municipally upkept, which keep a great proportion of the city's people out-of-doors in healthful pastime during their recreation hours.

Three big colleges are situated in Cleveland—Case School of Applied Science, Western Reserve University and St. Ignatius College (Catholic).

The public school system, superintended by the highest salaried school executive in the country, comprises two technical high schools, two commercial high schools, eleven academic high schools besides an adequate grammar school system, supplemented by a large number of parochial schools, night schools and training schools maintained by the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. A main library and forty-two branches circulate over 550,000 volumes. Branch libraries are installed in industrial establishments.

Civics students point to Cleveland as the best governed American city—graft-free and politically clean. The government is under a home rule charter which centers responsibility largely in the mayor who is elected. The policing and fire prevention facilities rank the city well up among the leaders. The roominess of the city which makes for homeliness also makes itself felt in the absence of danger of any serious conflagration. This roominess is again apparent in the streets which are exceptionally broad and straight. Five hundred and sixty miles of streets are paved and $3,000,000 is going into paving in 1917. The street railway system, though privately owned, is under municipal supervision and passengers are carried inside the city for a three cent fare.

A municipal electric light plant supplies the home owner with light current at three cents a kilowatt hour and the factory with power current at lower rates.

The city founded in 1796 by Moses Cleveland and which claimed distinction for years solely because of Euclid avenue's beautiful lawns and arching elms in this one hundred and twenty-first year of its life asks the world to know it by the paradoxical appellation. "The City of Factories and Homes," rather than its old pseudonym, The Forest City.

CLEVELAND BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS.

Cleveland has two business organizations. The Cleveland Chamber of Commerce with officers as follows: Charles A. Otis, President; E. R. Grasselli, 1st Vice President; J. C. Brainard, 2nd Vice President; J. R. Kraus, Treasurer; Munson Havens, Secretary.

The Cleveland Chamber of Industry (Incorporated) with the following officers and directors: Manning F. Fisher, President; Irving C. Geist and Bernard Miller, Vice Presidents; Charles L. Wasmer, Treas.; A. E. Hyre, Secretary. Directors: F. Philip Dorn, J. A. Dennerle, Wm. J. Becker, E. D. Maurer, J. B. McCrea, H. G. Schaefer, Jno. N. Hahn, J. D. McDonald, Jas. T. Miskell, Wm. Hughes, W. R. Coates, Chas. Kamp, W. H. Fay, Jno. H. Cox, J. H. Hildebrandt.

CINCINNATI CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

The Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce is the great business organization of Cincinnati. It has about 3,000 members, who represent practically the entire local commercial and professional field.

The Chamber of Commerce is one of the oldest organizations in the city. It was established in 1839. This association of business men has a long and honorable record for the things it has accomplished for Cincinnati and in the interests of business.

Such terms as "efficiency" and "scientific management" have recently appeared in our vocabulary. It is obvious that this tendency to efficiency in business should affect the methods not only of business or of factory, but also of voluntary organizations. Commercial associations are adopting the efficiency idea in the conduct of their activities.

This new kind of organization is typified in the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce. Today, instead of the work being done through committees of members, able to give only their spare time to the subjects under discussion, a different plan is followed. In order that careful investigation in any subject may be made and proper consideration given to each side of each subject, a staff of experts in special lines has been established. Their services are at the command of the various committees composed of members of the Chamber of Commerce.

Thus by bringing together in one organization over 3,000 men from many walks of life, there has been developed a great central organization which is constantly increasing in value and influence in the community. As small and isolated organizations become subsidiary groups in this large central body, wasteful duplication of effort is eliminated, and they secure influence which formerly was lacking.

Careful consideration of the big community problems and a policy of deliberate but firm action distinguishes the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce. Questions of all sorts affecting business and community interests are here considered. Various sorts of service are rendered, from the manifold activities of the civic and industrial department and the securing of conventions, to the official weighing and grading of hay and grain for the city of Cincinnati.

The Chamber of Commerce used to occupy its own building at the southwest corner of Fourth and Vine Streets. This was a most beautiful Gothic structure designed by Richardson, the famous architect. It was destroyed by fire in 1911. The Chamber has an equity of $600,000 in the site upon which this building stood, and where the Union Central Building now stands. In this thirty-four story building, opened in 1913, the Chamber of Commerce now has its quarters. The second and third floors are thus occupied. Here are to be found one of the few "exchanges" conducted by Chambers of Commerce; here are located the executive office and the many departments.

The exchange hall is the meeting place for business men. Here is posted information of various sorts—news bulletins, quotations of stock exchanges, and so forth. Here the members of the Chamber come for general meetings. Here they buy and sell. At present the principal commodities handled are grain and hay. Formerly many other articles were dealt in, but with the advent of the telephone and other modern instruments of business, the barter on the exchange has been limited practically to grain and hay, commodities that are bought by sample. The exchange is not a stock exchange. Actual transactions only take place. There is no dealing in margins or futures or in stocks or bonds.

The many activities of the great organization are centered in thirteen departments as follows: Auditing and Purchasing Department, Civic and Industrial Department, Convention and Publicity Department, Exchange Hall, Foreign Trade Department, Inspection Department, Legal Department, Membership Department, Retail Merchants' Department, Statistical Department, Trade Expansion Department, Traffic Department, Weighing Department.

There are many subsidiary and several affiliated organizations. The activities include perhaps a wider range than those of any other Chamber of Commerce in the country. Hardly any definite forward movement is made without the cooperation of this institution. Its influence upon commerce and industry is more than local, and indeed for many years it has been felt throughout the country.

The Officers of the Chamber of Commerce for 1917 are A. Clifford Shinkle, President of the Central Trust and Safe Deposit Company, and the Covington and Cincinnati Bridge Company, President; Ralph A. Tingle, special agent of the Standard Oil Company of Ohio, First Vice President; Luke W. Smith, President and Treasurer of Charles E. Smith & Sons Company, Second Vice President; J. E. McClain, Secretary and Treasurer of the Jos. R. Peebles Sons Company, Secretary; Bernard H. Wess, of the B. H. Wess Grain and Coal Company, Treasurer; W. C. Culkins, Executive Secretary, and the following Directors: James A. Reilly, Joseph D. Engelbert, Dwight Hinckley, Frank E. French, Robert W. Pogue, C. L. Harrison, C. S. Bailey, M. W. Mack, S. A. Eberle, and S. R. Meyer.

THE COLUMBUS CHAMBER OF COMMERCE. Columbus, the capital city of the State of Ohio, the largest city in the world bearing the name of the discoverer of the Western Hemisphere, is a natural center of industry, being located in the midst of a vast agricultural section, a natural shipping center as well as the central point of a wide area of raw products.

With the best water system and the purest water of any city in America, the best sewage disposal plant, Columbus today has an enviable record in low death rate. With the best housing code in America, a fine street car system, level streets, beautiful parks, elegant homes, unusually healthful and safe conditions, Columbus is an ideal home city.

In a commercial way it is a bee hive of industry, having 949 manufacturing plants, producing 10,000 different articles under 2235 different classes. These industries employ at least 35,000 people and produce $85,000,000 worth of products annually. The total capital invested in these plants exceeds $75,000,000.

Columbus is famed for its manufacturing of mining and conveying machinery; contractor's equipment, shoes, regalia, steel castings, couches, tile, dental supplies, piano stools, paints and varnishes, steel cars, oilcloth, carriages and wagons, and ten thousand other products shipped to every state in the Union. The railroad repair shops of the Pennsylvania and Hocking Valley railroads are located in Columbus employing thousands of men.

The City is also largely represented by the following: Meat packing, foundry and machine shops, lumber and planing mills, flour mills, printing and publishing, boots and shoes, tobacco, railroad shops, bakeries, blast furnaces, butter and cheese, furniture, petroleum refining, electric apparatus, knit goods; tin and sheet iron, gas, illuminating and heating, canning and preserving, brass and bronze, agricultural implements, patent medicines, confectionery, cars, steam railroad chemicals, marble and stone, leather goods.

The recent rapid commercial development of Columbus is due to a large extent to the progressiveness of the citizenship, the leaders of which co-operate through the Chamber of Commerce; and which organization claims the distinction of reaching out into as many fields of community activity as any organization of any kind in the world, and which also contributes directly though diversely to national development.

Besides being a constituent member of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and voicing for the business men of the central section of the state and for the Capital City of Ohio their opinions and suggestions in national business councils, the Columbus Chamber of Commerce is represented in the National Association of Manufacturers, national and foreign trade councils and conventions, and the National Industrial Traffic League.

Thus does the Columbus Chamber make an effort not only to keep its hand on the commercial pulse of the nation but supplementary to its local activities to add to that pulse.

This Chamber has been instrumental in the organization and maintenance of a Columbus Chapter, American Red Cross; Columbus Branch, National Safety Council, and has been identified with the Columbus Boy Scout Movement.

Within the past months the Columbus Chamber of Commerce has been instrumental in no less than a dozen modern examples of city legislation as exemplified in ordinances for paving, street improvement, creation of Franklin County conservancy board, re-establishment of refuse collection, restricting of parking of automobiles in retail districts, street sign regulation, smoke abatement; all of which have to do with the comfort, safety and welfare of the city. To this may be added approval and support of bond issue for a contagion hospital and others.

Besides this broad scope of civic activities, the other activities of the Chamber are divided into an Industrial Department which endeavors to bring live industries to the city and to promote those already established; the Retail Merchants' Association which looks after the collective interests of the retailers; the Manufacturers' & Jobbers' Association which develops new trade relations throughout the state and country; the traffic department cares for the interests of the Columbus shippers; the publicity and entertainment department which publishes and distributes information concerning the city, furnishes news articles for newspapers, magazines and trade publications, answers hundreds of inquiries monthly from all sections of the country, and abroad, concerning Columbus commerce and advantages; and the Social Service Department which investigates and systematizes benevolent projects which solicit money from the public.

Among the recent activities of note the Columbus Chamber has been instrumental in the organization of an Industrial Securities Company to promote and foster industries, a Franklin County Co-operative Farm Bureau, and a Columbus Chapter of the American Red Cross.

The Chamber brings together the community's natural leaders, the men who are interested in the community's advancement and organizes them into an efficient working machine. In such matters as clean-up and paint-up campaigns, openings of the base-ball season, reception to returning National Guardsmen from Border service, fire prevention propaganda, trade extension and acquaintance tours, and inaugural and civic celebrations, the Chamber heads the movements. At State Fairs, the Chamber organization is used largely as the machinery to promote the attractive features which are planned for these events.

Affiliated with the Columbus Chamber of Commerce, of which they are branches, are the Retail Merchants' Association, Manufacturers' & Jobbers' Association, and the Columbus Advertising Club.

The Columbus Chamber has recently taken an active part in a successful enterprise to finance for Columbus an immense Exposition Building, valued at a half million dollars, with a floor space of 75,000 square feet, and a seating capacity of 10,000 people and which will meet the needs of all kinds of indoor gatherings including conventions, expositions, carnivals, grand opera, tournaments, automobile, horse and other similar shows, spectacular stage performances, athletic and arena contests and mass meetings. The architects are just completing the working plans, following the final stock subscriptions in the project.

The Chamber of Commerce has cooperated with the Conventions and Publicity Association in securing for Columbus next October the National Dairy Show which is expected to bring to the city over 300,000 visitors. In this connection a coliseum costing $200,000 is to be erected at the State Fair Grounds.

The Columbus Chamber of Commerce is in reality a Chamber of Citizenship. It brings together the community's natural leaders, the men who are interested in the community's advancement, and organizes them into an efficient working machine, and it molds the public opinion in matters looking toward the comfort, safety and welfare of the city.

TOLEDO. In July, 1909, a stranger like Dick Whittington of old, wandered into a little town in northern Ohio, then having a population of about 150,000 souls and recognized at once its great possibilities as a transportation center and cast his lot with Toledo.

The man was John N. Willys. He had very little capital but had plenty of nerve and vision. His first year's production of cars was 465, while in 1916 the Willys-Overland plants turned out 150,000. It is very difficult to realize the magnitude of a production of this sort until the reader can realize to make it possible, a car must leave the finishing room fully complete every minute and a half, day and night, for the year, and that if these 150,000 cars were placed in a line as close together as possible that they would extend 284 miles which means that this line of cars would stretch from Toledo to Chicago and fifty miles past that city.

The building of a monster organization of this kind is little short of marvelous and has been accomplished as a magician might wave his wand. The floor space of the factory has increased from the original amount of 419,950 square feet to 4,486,680 square feet or 103 acres, quite large enough for the modern farm. John Willys was not over estimating the possibilities of Toledo.

The city is now the second automobile center, the largest clover seed market in the world, the largest roaster of coffees in the United States a great flour milling center and foremost producer of glass products in the United States.

Industries Varied. Toledo industries cover a great variety of products manufactured. Toledo manufactures a large amount of cut glass, marketed all over the world. It is also a large plate glass producing center and one industry in particular, located in Toledo, has revolutionized the making of glass bottles. This is the result of patents upon a bottle machine and all of the bottles manufactured in the world are now made on these machines. During 1916, four of these companies manufactured 613,959,696 bottles.

Toledo is the home of the Champion Spark Plug Co., whose production of spark plugs during 1916 amounted to 20,000,000. Six ships were built by the Toledo Shipbuilding Co. during 1916, valued at over $2,000,000. Toledo has the largest concrete dock in the world, located at the Shipbuilding Co.

Other products for which Toledo is celebrated are children's vehicles, canvas gloves and mittens, atomizers, bottles, chimneys, scales, wagons, wheelbarrows, pig iron, malleable iron, springs, oil refining, oil well supplies, linseed oil, castor oil, sugar, machinery, elevators, flour, electrical apparatus, tinware, women's clothing.

A Transportation Center. Toledo is the second transportation center in the United States. The opportunities for cheap and quick transportation via the Great Lakes are so far reaching as not to be readily appreciated. Eight great states border the Great Lakes on the south and west and Canada on the north and east.

The cheapest transportation in the world is open to Toledo. Allen D. Albert says that Toledo cannot help but be a transportation center on account of its location. Toledo has the following railroad facilities: Lake Shore & Michigan Southern operates six lines, to-wit: Old Road division, Air Line division, Detroit division, Norwalk division, Jackson division, Sandusky division. Toledo & Central operates two lines, to-wit: Eastern division and Columbus division; Big Four; Pennsylvania R. R. operates three lines, to-wit: Mansfield division, Vandalia division, Chicago division; Wabash operates two divisions, to-wit: Chicago division and St. Louis division; C. H. & D.; Hocking Valley; Pere Marquette; Ann Arbor; Toledo, St. Louis & Western; Wheeling & Lake Erie; Toledo, Angola & Western; Detroit & Toledo Short Line. Outside of the freight steamers, which represent many different companies and which are loading and unloading continuously, Toledo has three regular steamship lines.

Materials entering are: Iron ore, lumber, wheat, flaxseed, sand and gravel. One of Toledo's best facilities in the way of transportation is a terminal railroad, 23 miles long, making a complete belt of the various lines, something which every city may point to with pride.

Toledo does not owe its growth to any sudden boom, but to a steady rise, and its natural advantages are mainly responsible for its sturdy growth. Toledo is most fortunately located on the Maumee river at its entrance to Maumee Bay. The Maumee River is the largest stream entering into the Great Lakes and its exceptional width and depth at its mouth gives Toledo a land-locked harbor, 400 feet wide and 21 feet deep and approximately 15 miles long with plenty of dockage. This allows the largest freighters ample room to come down into the heart of the city and to turn around in mid-stream without any towing.

The climate of Toledo, both winter and summer, is agreeably tempered by its proximity to Lake Erie; summer cottages are snugly set along the lake and bay shore, which are quickly and easily reached by three lines of electric cars; the river, bay and lake give opportunities for rowing, canoeing, power boating, yachting and bathing.

Besides these natural advantages the railroads, realizing Toledo's importance as a transportation and distributing center, have spent millions of dollars on docks and terminal facilities.

Mercantile Center. Toledo is the largest food supply market in the state. Its retail stores are modern and up-to-date, forty-six of these represent a capitalization of nearly $12,000,000; employees, 5160; monthly payroll of $292,572, and they expend in advertising in one year in Toledo approximately the sum of $527,850. The total amount of both the payroll and advertising is $4,048,714. Toledo is also a large jobbing center and its manufactures are varied and extensive. It excels in the manufacture of children's vehicles, canvas gloves and mittens.

Toledo affords an excellent opportunity for small manufacturers to locate here, as it has one of the most up-to-date factory buildings in the United States giving infant industries the opportunity of locating temporarily or permanently in this building with every modern convenience to launch their enterprise at nominal rates.

Government statistics show figures concerning home ownership as follows: Total number of homes, 39,677; total number of homes owned, 17,170; number owned free, 9,622; number of homes encumbered, 7,435.

THE TOLEDO COMMERCE CLUB. The Toledo Commerce Club, an organization of practically 4000 members, is one built along the most modern and up to date lines, combining all of the features of an organization interested in civic and community work along with certain club features comprising a noon-day get together club for business men.

The organization takes an active interest in all civic matters and matters concerning better government of the city.

The club features consist of a reading room, a floor devoted to billiards, its membership is divided into six parts which meet daily at noon day Luncheon Clubs at which time a general expression of the ideas of the membership on community lines and the running of the organization makes its administration a very democratic one.

The various departments of the organization concern themselves with Municipal Research, Traffic and Transportation, Publicity and Conventions, Charities, Membership Work, Agricultural Extension and many other matters.

Various committees meet in the club rooms at noon where they may take lunch together and pursue their committee work without interruption.

One of the more unselfish phases of the Club's work and which has been seldom, if ever attempted by commercial organizations, is the summer camp to which 150 mothers and their families of children were taken out along an ideal strip of sandy beach on Lake Erie and were given a two weeks' vacation.

The Club has fostered a work house farm for Toledo and has been successful in putting through this worthy measure, a site for which will be selected in the near future.

The publicity and conventions work has consisted of bringing numbers of prominent business men into Toledo and making their stay a pleasant one while in the city, showing the town at its best advantage in every case. The publicity work has been successful in having Toledo get recognition in national periodicals of various kinds and characters. Some of the publicity campaigns which have been put on have been publicity week for the Public Library calling attention to its many good features as well as an extensive Buy-at-Home campaign, calling attention to the many advantages in buying in your own town.

Through the efforts of the Agricultural Extension Committee, a County Agent will soon be secured for Lucas County.

The Traffic Department has been active in solving some of the complex problems which must be dealt with in Toledo, it being the third railroad center in the United States and through the efficient work of this body, the transportation problems of Toledo have been made comparatively simple, even through a period of untold commercial activity causing much congestion in shipping.

The Public Research Committee has made investigations into the government of the city and are at all times in position to give thoroughly reliable advice in matters of city government.

The Commerce Club has been successful in bringing many new industries to Toledo. The club is active in its work for the better health and sanitation. Other matters with which the Commerce Club is actively co-operating are in the matter of good roads, Boy Scout movement and Charity work.

The organization's administration consists of a Board of Trustees, a Secretary and Departments as follows: Trustees, F. B. Anderson, E. B. Conliss, Charles Feilbach, A. E. Fovle, C. E. B. Lamson, Wilbur Owen, R. R. Scott, Dr. C. D. Selby, C. B. Spitzer, Rev. A. A. Stockdale; President, Irving E. Macomber; First Vice President, Robert Hixon; Second Vice President, Gustavus Ohlinger; Third Vice President, Henry C. Truesdall; Treasurer, William F. Broer; Secretary, Frank G. Saxton; Traffic Bureau, H. G. Wilson, Commissioner; Publicity and Conventions Department, W. A. Phelps, Secretary; Public Research Bureau, Gardner Lattimer, Director; Retail Merchants' Board, J. H. Combs, Secretary.

THE GREATER DAYTON ASSOCIATION.

The Greater Dayton Association, of Dayton, largest civic-commercial organization in the United States, was the issue of a new community conscience and spirit developed during and subsequent to the memorable flood of 1913.

Asserting an unbreakable faith in the city and its people, and a determination to rise above the circumstances of disaster which most effectively provoked a genuine democracy of sorrow, members of the old Chamber of Commerce decided to enlarge the scope and province of the organization. The Greater Dayton Association was the result. It was agreed not to confine activities to the ordinary efforts which circumscribe a commercial body but to make its efforts extend in all directions.

It was determined to aid the city and its merchants and manufacturers industrially, but it was also felt that any movement that affects betterment of the condition of the workmen of a community, is a positive step in community welfare. The promoters of the new association and the proponents of the new conception in community service asserted that in such service women should be on equality with men, hence The Greater Dayton Association numbers several hundred women members whose loyalty and breadth of judgment makes them valuable assets.

The Greater Dayton Association aided the friends of good government and municipal progress in promoting and having sanctioned by the voters, a new charter for the city resulting in the establishment by Dayton of the commission-manager type. It has aided the administration in the formulation and execution of policies and has taken a firm, unequivocal stand in defense of the highly centralized business-manager form of city government.

In promoting parks and other recreational facilities for the masses; in supporting measures for the conservation of public health; in espousing remedial legislation sought for numerous public connections; and in extending educational facilities The Greater Dayton Association has done systematic and effective work. It is maintaining a permanent industrial exposition, fostering a club school for salespeople, supporting a home economics bureau for the promulgation of information along food lines, supporting the affiliation of the various charitable and philanthropic efforts of the city and leading in many other activities. Forty working committees are maintained, engaged in a great diversity of efforts, educational and promoting public welfare indoctrinating the community with methods and measures for safety, health, thrift, wholesome recreation.

One committee passes on the inventions of Dayton genius, encouraging mechanical skill and design and aiding the inventors to receive the financial encouragement to which they are entitled if their offerings are meritorious. Another committee is concerned with financial encouragement for financially handicapped industrial enterprises. An effective traffic bureau and foreign trade bureau are maintained. In all efforts of the city, publicity is given unsparingly yet with discrimination, by The Greater Dayton Association, which takes the stand that, for desirability of location, natural advantages, intelligence of citizenship and opportunities for livelihood and service Dayton has no superior in the brilliant galaxy of American cities.

From the material side, attention is called to the fact that Dayton has eighteen building and loan associations, fifteen national, state and private banks, more than six hundred manufacturing establishments. The jobbing trade of the city amounted to $25,123,000 and the output of its factories aggregated $143,071,524. The population is 140,000, based on federal estimates.

The city's industrial plants employ 30,000 wage earners. In the elimination of partisanship and adoption of policies, analogous to those sustained in the average up-to-date American industrial corporation, the city government has developed an efficiency new in American municipal government. In the development of this The Greater Dayton Association has taken no small part.

The membership of the association is 7700. Ferdinand J. Ach is the president, with E. L. Shuey and S. S. King, vice-presidents. Other members of the directorate are George B. McCann, treasurer; E. C. Harley, F. R. Henry, Mrs. Marie Kumler, John P. Breen, Adam Schantz, C. A. Kurz, Jr., and George B. Smith. John M. Guild is the executive secretary.

THE AKRON CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

The Akron Chamber of Commerce was organized in 1903 with about seven hundred members. This has been increased each year until 1917 it has a membership of about 2,700.

The activities of the Chamber embrace all matters pertaining to the welfare and upbuilding of the city. The Chamber established a Bureau of Municipal Research in 1914 as an auxiliary, and an enlargement of its work in cooperation with the city government.

Among the most important matters the Chamber has assisted in securing for the development of the city and county have been: the municipal water system, costing about five million dollars; plans for the elimination of railroad grade crossings throughout the city; the drafting of a city building code; the preparation of a City Plan; development of the park system; the paving of the main roads throughout the County, and the securing of an Agricultural Agent for Summit County.

Akron's population in 1917 is about 125,000. The United States census population in 1910 gave the city 69,067. Akron is the largest rubber manufacturing center in the world, and has extensive cereal mills and clay product plants. The capitalization of its 163 industries is $199,578,000; the value of their manufactured products in 1916 was $226,668,000, and the payroll of these industries for 1916 was over forty million dollars. The bank clearings for 1916 aggregated $207,484,000. The value of the building permits issued by the City Building Inspector's office for 1916 totaled $12,727,000.

The officers of the Akron Chamber of Commerce for 1917 are: Crannell Morgan, President; E. E. Workman, First Vice President; F. C. Howland, Second Vice President; Harry Williams, Treasurer; Vincent S. Stevens, Secretary.

THE HAMILTON CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

The Hamilton Chamber of Commerce was organized on May 20, 1910, with an original membership of 250, which has since grown to 712. The first president of the organization was George Theodore Reiss, Vice President of the Niles Tool Works Company and chief engineer of the Niles-Bement-Pond Company. Mr. Reiss served the organization two years and was a director until his death in May, 1915. Other presidents of the organization were: S. D. Fitton, president First National Bank of Hamilton, 1912; Christian Benninghofen, of Shuler and Benninghofen, 1913; Charles E. Mason, Vice-President First National Bank, 1914-1915-1916; Charles D. Mathes, Vice-President and Secretary The Mathes Schengen Company, 1917.

Carl R. Greer has been secretary of the Chamber from the time of its organization, coming to this post from the editorship of The Daily Republican-News, of Hamilton.

The Hamilton Chamber of Commerce has accomplished a great amount of constructive work for Hamilton and Butler County. The scope of the organization is broad and permits it to engage in any enterprise for the promotion of the business, the civic life and the moral and physical betterment of its community and throws open the privileges of membership to "all well-meaning" citizens."

The industrial promotion work of the Chamber has been especially notable, and through the efforts of the organization ten new industries, distributing more than $300,000.00 per year in pay-rolls have been secured. An industrial fund of $50,000.00 was subscribed by members of the Chamber, and has been expended in promotion work.

One of the most comprehensive good roads programs existing in any county in Ohio was developed and carried out by the Chamber, which induced the county authorities to levy a special road tax yielding, in connection with state funds, about $175,000 per year for the construction of permanent paved roads. This work will be continued until all main highways of Butler county are paved. The paving of the Dixie Highway, which was secured by the Chamber for Hamilton, is being completed in 1917.

A great deal of important legislation has been secured for Hamilton through the Chamber, including a modern building code. The Hamilton Chamber originated and secured the passage of the Ohio law giving cities the right to use county fair grounds as public parks.

The Chamber secured a high-class park commission for Hamilton, and conducted the most comprehensive campaign for the city beautiful ever carried out in an Ohio city. During the summer of 1916 it conducted "The Fort Hamilton Exposition" in celebration of the city's 125th anniversary, attracting 50,000 people to the most notable pageant and exposition in the county's history.

Hamilton was among the first cities of Ohio to install boulevard lighting on a plan originated and executed by the Chamber. The list of the organization's promotive activities is too extensive for review.

Hamilton is the county seat of Butler county, and is situated on the Great Miami River, 25 miles north of Cincinnati, and 31 miles south of Dayton. The population in 1917 is 41,000. The city was founded by General Arthur St. Clair in 1791, as a fort and was occupied by General Anthony Wayne in 1794. It was laid out by Israel Ludlow.

As a manufacturing center few cities of America are more widely known. It contains 140 manufacturing institutions, of which a number are among the largest of their kind in the world. The total capital invested in manufacturing enterprise is in excess of $27,000,000.00 and the weekly pay-rolls are upwards of $160,000.00. The city's manufacturing interest is diversified, but there are large paper mills, machine tool industries, engine factories, safe and bank vault plants, iron foundries, blast furnaces, coke plants, woolen mills, woodenware and marble plants, can and container factories, tractor plants, paper mill machinery plants, railroad supply mills and a variety of other industries.

The city has thirty churches, twenty-one schools, including a new $400,000 high school, a country club, four fine social clubs, a $200,000 Young Men's Christian Association and many other notable institutions. Hamilton was the first city of America to own and operate all its public utilities, including water, electric and gas plants. Hamilton is the only city of America in which both natural and artificial gas are sold as low as 30 cents per thousand cubic feet. Miami University. The Western College and other educational institutions are located at Oxford, 12 miles from Hamilton.

One of the notable works of the Hamilton Chamber of Commerce was its promotion in Butler County of the Miami Conservancy District, which is building a flood prevention work in the Miami Valley, at a cost of about $21,000,000.00, which will render the Miami Valley forever free from flood danger. It is expected that by 1921 the Great Miami Valley will be the only valley in America entirely immune from the danger of flood.

PIQUA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE. The membership is the foundation of the organization and every function and all authority radiate from it.

In order to directly interest each member, and to properly group the activities of the organization, the membership is divided, on the administrative side, into Main Divisions corresponding to Bureaus. Each member of the organization designates the Division or Divisions (he may designate three) in which his interests chiefly center, and in which he prefers to be active. Each Main Division is represented in the Board of Directors by two Directors; so with six Divisions or Bureaus, they jointly furnish twelve members of the Board.

To balance the organization there is provided an initiative and referendum section of the membership known as the Membership Council. For the creation of this body, the membership of the organization is automatically divided into sub-divisions of Trade Groups corresponding to the various lines of Trade, industry and professions. Manufacturers of a specified line, or allied lines, constitute one group or sub-division; retailers in a certain line or allied lines constitute another; the members of one profession or its allies another, and so on through the various businesses, trades and professions.

Each sub-division has elected two delegates to the Membership Council, and with the thirty-three sub-divisions we have a Council membership of sixty-six. The Council meets semi-monthly, and is the initiative force of the organization. It, also, provides a referendum on important matters of public policy, representing, as it does, every business, profession and trade and every civic interest.

The Membership Council, like each Main Division, is represented on the Board of Directors by two Directors, thus making the total number of Directors fourteen.

The Board of Directors elect from their number or from the membership at large, a President, and from their own number only, one Vice-President for each Bureau, and a Treasurer.

From the above we see that through this form the closest relation and sympathy between each Bureau and the Board of Directors is insured and harmony in the policies and undertakings of all sections of the organization guaranteed.

The active Bureau work is done through special committees selected for each specific undertaking. This insures separate undertakings being carried forward by members especially informed and especially interested in each particular undertaking.

Standing Committees are provided for in a limited number, viz., Executive, Finance and Membership. The mission of each is indicated by its name.

The President and the Board of Directors constitute the administrative force. The Executive Officer is the Secretary, who has general oversight over all the activities of the organization. He co-operates with the Vice-Presidents in directing the work of the various Bureaus and is chosen by the Board of Directors.

Under this plan every working element of our organization is co-ordinated yet responsibilities and labor are systematically and judiciously segregated and placed, so that, as in large private business operations, each individual is giving his personal service and doing an assigned part of the whole, coincident with and co-ordinate to what all others are doing. The officers are: James L. Black President; T. J. Appleyard, Jr., Executive Secretary; August S. Clouse Treasurer; John T. Nielson Nat. Councillor. The Vice-Presidents are: E. H. Allen, Rural Affairs Bureau; C. C. Jelleff, Convention Bureau; O. J. Lecklider, Transportation Bureau; C. E. Barker, Mercantile Bureau; A. G. Rundle, Civic Bureau; H. D. Hartley, Industrial Bureau; A. A. Hall, Membership Council. The Directors are: E. H. Allen, C. E. Barker, A. S. Clouse, F. L. Marshall, H. D. Hartley, C. C. Jelleff, G. Washing, E. Johnson, O. J. Lecklider, J. T. Nielson, A. G. Rundle, C. A. Campbell, A. A. Hall, M. H. Lytle.

THE ASHTABULA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE. The present chamber of Commerce of the City of Ashtabula was organized in February, 1908, for the customary purposes of a Chamber of Commerce, and from its inception has enjoyed a steady growth in influence and usefulness. Its present membership is three hundred and fifty. Very attractive club rooms with the attendant social features were acquired in January, 1915, when the leading social club of Ashtabula, the Lenawawe Club, was absorbed by the Chamber, all property of the Club passing to the Chamber with the understanding that the Club facilities would be maintained at the same high standard of the previous fifteen years of its existence. This amalgamation gave a certain stability to the Chamber and made membership in it desirable to many citizens not previously interested.

Membership dues of $12.00 per annum and the responsibility of maintaining rather expensive rooms for a city of the size have not permitted the employment of a full time secretary, and the secretarial duties have been performed by some local business or professional man at a nominal salary. Notwithstanding this inconvenience the functions of a Chamber of Commerce have been fulfilled in a very satisfactory manner through the loyalty and generous service of its members acting as officers or committee-men. A vigorous Retail Merchants' Board has also been conducted within the Chamber.

Notable among the civic advantages and improvements secured through the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce are the city government itself, a highly developed type of Commission-Manager plan with a commission, or council, elected by proportional representation, an extensive ship-building plant with dry-docks where the largest lake freighters are constructed and repaired, and car shops of the New York Central Lines for the repair of steel and wooden cars. Each of these two industries employ more people than any other single industry. Subways, improved street lighting, highly modernized school buildings and equipment have also sprung from the same source. The weekly luncheon meetings of the Chamber have become a civic forum where local matters of interest are fully and freely discussed by citizens to their mutual benefit.

Ashtabula itself is a city of 21,450 people according to the Census Department estimate of December, 1916. It is distinctly a railroad rather than a manufacturing city, located as it is on the main artery for the transportation of iron ore and coal between the Minnesota ore deposits and the coal mines of the Pittsburgh District. Its harbor has the largest capacity of any in the world for the unloading of iron ore from ship to rail, and in 1916, as in several other years, it surpassed all other ports in the world in the amount of iron ore so handled, the enormous quantity of eleven and one-half million gross tons of ore having been trans-shipped from water to rail.

Ashtabula's manufacturing interests enjoy especial advantages in unusual transportation facilities both by water and rail, and in intelligent and abundant labor little disturbed by labor troubles. The adjacent country is highly improved dairy and farm land contributing generously to the prosperity of the city. At the city limits winter gardening under glass is carried on extensively in enormous green-houses, and probably over fifty acres of land is cultivated in this manner, the product, lettuce, cucumbers and tomatoes, being shipped to neighboring cities.

Water as fine as any in the state is obtained in abundance from Lake Erie and filtered before distribution. Natural gas is found in enormous quantities within three miles of the city. Electricity is furnished by a municipally owned plant at a very low rate. Coal is comparatively cheap at a freight rate of $1.00 per ton from the Pittsburgh District.

The social and educational development of Ashtabula is comprehensive. It has some twenty-three churches, two modern high schools and ample and substantial grade structures, a modern Y. M. C. A.

building, Elks' Temple, Federal Building, Public Library, and over two hundred acres of public parks, a good part of which has lake frontage and bathing facilities.

THE SALEM CHAMBER OF COMMERCE. The Salem Chamber of Commerce was organized fourteen years ago (1903). Two years ago it was reorganized with the idea in mind of making it consider industrial, commercial, civic and rural problems, and eliminate the club features that had prevailed theretofore. It has a membership of about 250. The dues are eight dollars a year with about 100 special pledges of $20 per year. It has for the past two years felt that its duty was to concern itself with civic rather than industrial growth.

During that time the water supply of the city has been largely increased, the water mains have been enlarged in various sections of the city, the fire department has been motorized, the power supply has been trebled, the sewage treatment plant has been given considerable attention, and the like.

Three additional industries were secured, one was taken out of the hands of receivership and one fostered in such a way that a group of men who had formerly been employed in a department of one of the plants, organized their own company.

Considerable attention has been given to the road movement and also to the rural problem, having in mind that the best method of fighting the mail order house was to come into personal contact with the rural people themselves.

Salem is situated on the Ft. Wayne and Chicago division of the Pennsylvania lines. It is midway between Pittsburgh and Cleveland, and midway between Chicago and New York. It has some twenty industries, very diversified. We doubt whether any city in the country with a population the size of Salem has a greater diversity. Salem also has one of the most perfectly equipped hospitals in the state and a very interesting country club.

The Salem Chamber of Commerce has believed that while natural resources were important, that the personal element was even more important. Those industries which were secured were secured because the men interested were convinced that we had a city where laborers were satisfied, where a very large percentage own their own homes, and where the manufacturer and his associates themselves can have a very congenial surrounding.

Ohio Newspapers

THE CINCINNATI TIMES-STAR. The Cincinnati Times-Star is one of the oldest and admittedly one of the leading newspapers of the middle west. In the afternoon field it is acknowledged as the foremost in this section of the country. Housed in its own building, a splendid structure of seven stories and two basements at Sixth and Walnut Streets, The Times-Star plant is one of the most complete and modern in the newspaper world. The mechanical equipment probably is unequaled in this country, the press room being referred to as a model. The news columns are clean, the paper is noted for its accuracy and fairness in publishing all sides in matters of public interest, and the policy in regard to advertising is to exclude that which is not up to a high standard in character, reliability and truthfulness.

The books of the Times-Star always are open to the leading agencies which seek to establish the truth regarding circulation and advertising values of newspapers. The present circulation is, in round numbers, 160,000 daily, and the quality of the circulation is recognized by leading merchants and manufacturers who use its columns more freely than they do those of any other paper in Cincinnati. Politically the Times-Star might be classed as independent Republican. The paper was founded in 1837 by Calvin W. Starbuck and it was then styled The Times. It grew steadily and during the civil war attained a wonderful influence and prosperity. Soon after the death of Mr. Starbuck in 1870, the owners of The Chronicle, an evening paper which had just started, purchased The Times and for a time the Times-Chronicle was the title. Then the word Chronicle was eliminated.

In 1872 The Star, another afternoon paper, appeared and in 1880 the two papers were merged into the Times-Star. The present owner of the paper is Mr. Charles P. Taft. Joseph Garretson is managing editor and C. H. Rembold is manager. A number of editions are published daily, and the newspaper circulates in a great majority of the homes within a wide radius in Southern Ohio and Northern Kentucky.

MANSFIELD NEWS. Few newspapers of the country published in cities of 25,000 population, enjoy the prestige and hold a record equal to that of the Mansfield News, the only evening newspaper in the county seat of Richland Co. The News recently passed the 8,000 mark in paid circulation and is delivered into ninety-six out of every hundred homes in Mansfield, its circulation reaching out into every part of the county as well as into the five adjoining counties.

Founded in 1885 by the late W. S. Cappeller, one of the best known newspaper men in Ohio, The News has gone steadily forward from a small beginning overcoming many early-day obstacles and keeping step with the progress of the community until it now occupies a position of recognized leadership among the newspapers of the smaller cities of Ohio, while in its home city it ranks high among Mansfield institutions.

Ever since its beginning The News has been under the editorial direction of E. S. Hiestand, an editorial writer and paragrapher of exceptional ability, whose opinions on matters of moment have come to be held in high esteem in Ohio newspaperdom and who has maintained in the conduct of the editorial policy of The News a high ethical standard.

Since the death of W. S. Cappeller, in 1911, The News has been under the management of his son, E. B. Cappeller, whose prior experience in the advertising department had made him fully familiar with all of the details of newspaper production and who has continued the business along the same progressive lines which were responsible for its successful development under the direction of its founder.

The completion of recent improvements in the home of The News includes the addition of a four-story fireproof annex in which has been installed press room, linotypes and composing room, and a thoroughly modernized stereotyping department, placing the News among the best mechanically equipped small newspaper plants in the United States.

THE FINDLAY PUBLISHING COMPANY, FINDLAY, OHIO. The Findlay Publishing Company, Findlay, Ohio, publishers of The Morning Republican, the only morning paper in the eighth congressional district. This paper is the leading newspaper in its field and has a circulation of more than 6,000. It is equipped with four linotype machines and a Duplex Tubular stereotyping press with a capacity of 30,000 sixteen page papers per hour. A complete job printing department is conducted in connection in which the highest grade of commercial, book and catalogue printing is done. The company owns its own building which is one of the largest and most completely arranged newspaper and printing homes in Northwestern Ohio. The company organization is as follows: President, Dr. N. L. MacLachlan; vice president, E. C. Taylor; secretary, John D. Snyder; treasurer, business manager and editor-in-chief, I. N. Heminger; managing editor, A. F. Hardman; superintendent of job printing department, C. A. Wormley.

Banks and Business Organizations

THE WOOD COUNTY SAVINGS BANK CO. Bowling Green, situated as it is in the center of the famous garden spot of Northwestern Ohio, is known far and wide as one of the most enterprising progressive, and vigorous towns on the map.

Intellectually, morally and socially, with its State Normal College, progressive public schools, its churches and fine homes, its factories, and healthy business institutions and surrounded by the richest agricultural section out-of-doors, and manned by alert, broad-minded, brainy business men, it is little wonder its record for growth and progress is so marked.

And right here let it be said that no small part of its financial progress is due to the push, help and encouragement given the public by The Wood County Savings Bank, one of the solid financial institutions of the State.

The bank was organized in 1900 by such men as R. W. McMahan, Dr. W. M. Tuller, Dr. J. C. Lincoln, J. W. Underwood, Judge F. A. Baldwin, Captain Luther Black, R. S. Patty, Dr. M. A. McKendree and others.

While it has always been known as the strongest bank in this section, its latter day progress has been very rapid, and it is by far the largest institution in Wood County. In 1906 it absorbed the old Exchange Bank.

Since John H. Lincoln became Cashier in January 1, 1912, the resources of the bank have more than doubled, and they are way over the million mark and it is the only institution in Wood County with that honor.

The policy of the Wood County Savings Bank while always conservative has been of an accommodating character. Its rapid growth shows it enjoys the confidence of the people, and its large surplus adds additional safety to the depositors. All officials furnish large surety bonds, heavy burglary insurance is carried, and the property amply protected by fire insurance. The safe and conservative policy is further shown by the fact that this bank is always one of the bidders upon Wood County Bonds, and at the present time (February, 1917) over one quarter million of these securities are found among its assets.

The make-up of the official organization is a very strong one and is as follows: E. M. Fries, President; W. M. Tuller, Vice President; J. H. Lincoln, Cashier; S. R. Case, Assistant Cashier; Frank Kabig, Wm. R. Hopper, J. C. Lincoln, N. R. Harrington, A. C. McDonald, E. O. Sargent, C. W. Lenhart, C. B. Eberly, Directors.

Their system is the most modern and up-to-date possible, and on account of their rapidly increasing business they have lately been compelled to make alterations in order to more effectually handle the business of their increasing list of customers.

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK, FREMONT, OHIO. The First National Bank, Fremont, Ohio. Organized 1863. Fifth oldest National Bank in the United States. Capital, $100,000; Surplus, $105,000; Additional Shareholders' Liability, $100,000; Depositors' Security, $205,000. Officers: President, Chas. G. Wilson; Vice President, John M. Sherman; 2nd Vice President, John Fangbner; 3rd Vice President, I. T. Fangbner; Cashier, Wm. A. Gabel; Asst. Cashier, F. W. Schwan; Asst. Cashier, J. Homer Sherman.

THE CITIZENS SAVINGS BANK, UPPER SANDUSKY, OHIO. The Citizens Savings Bank, Upper Sandusky, Ohio. Capital, $50,000; Surplus, $20,000; Undivided Profits, $3,500. President, Richard Carter; Vice President, A. B. Whitney; Cashier, Ira R. Pontius; Asst. Cashier, Charles Artz; Teller, Edgar Traxler; Bookkeeper, Tom McElowny. Directors: Samuel J. Black, Richard Carter, F. M. Fox, Hubert Gregg, Simon Herr, A. H. Morris, Wm. Olpp, M. M. Stoneburner, A. B. Whitney.

THE A. B. CHASE COMPANY, NORWALK, OHIO, was incorporated September 1, 1875, with an authorized capital of $50,000.00. Later the authorized capital was fixed at $250,000.00, and still later was raised to $500,000.00—the present capitalization of the Company.

Ground was broken for the first building November 1, 1875, which was a wooden structure three stories in height. The building was ready for installation of machinery January 1, 1876, and manufacturing was begun July 1, 1876. The building was destroyed by fire September 3, 1880, and was immediately supplanted by a three-story brick structure, which with its additions as the business demanded, today is a large and commodious plant with approximately six acres of floor space.

In the beginning, the Company confined its activities to the manufacture of organs, but as the trade shifted, attention was turned to the production of the highest grade of artistic pianos, and later to player-pianos, which at once met with popular favor the country over. Today, the A. B. Chase line of Upright and Grand Pianos; Upright and Grand Player-Pianos; together with Concert Grand; and Special-to-Order Designs is the largest line of strictly high-grade pianos offered by any one manufacturer in the United States.

The name "A. B. Chase" on the fall board of a piano has come to be universally recognized as a guarantee of supreme excellence.

There is no material too good, and no construction too expensive for A. B. Chase Pianos if it will make them any better.

The A. B. Chase product is represented by the most reliable dealers in the Nation, and these instruments have found their way into schools, homes, and churches of many foreign lands.

The officers of the Company are: C. P. Wickham, President; W. C. Whitney, Vice President and General Manager; A. W. Gardiner, 2nd Vice President; Geo. M. Burdue, Secretary; L. E. West, Treasurer.

THE E. H. CLOSE REALTY COMPANY. The E. H. Close Realty Company, Toledo, Ohio, was organized January 1, 1909, with offices on the ground floor of the Spitzer Building, facing Madison avenue. Its working force consisted of Mr. Close, three men assistants and a girl in charge of the books.

In seven years, the organization had grown to more than a hundred people in the office force alone with anywhere from 50 to 300 others engaged in the field and building departments during season.

Rapid growth of business forced the firm to lease and equip its own building and accordingly it took over the six-story structure at 513-515 Madison avenue, immediately across from the Spitzer Building. This it reconstructed into a modern office building, the company occupying the first floor and basement, the fourth floor and a big part of the third floor. Its offices are the roomiest and most elaborately equipped of any in the United States, according to visiting real estate men.

Officers of The E. H. Close Realty Company are: E. H. Close, President and Treasurer; George B. Ricaby, Vice President; Paul A. Harsch, Secy.; Lucia J. Straub, Assistant Secretary. The firm is incorporated under the laws of Ohio, and operates a general real estate, insurance, loan and building business. Its operations in downtown property alone total high into the millions, and it has platted and placed on the market nearly 3000 acres of land. Included in the residential developments are Ottawa Hills and Homeville, the latter being the most highly improved ever offered at popular prices and on easy terms.

In Ottawa Hills, the firm has one of the three or four properties in America that stand out as models of residential development. The spirit in which the property is being handled is expressed on the ornamental signs which stand at its entrance. These read, "Ottawa Hills, a civic undertaking based on a patriotic belief in Toledo's present and future greatness." This declaration is made because the entire project is due to the public spirited action of Mr. John North Willys, head of the Overland automobile industry. In the face of the certainty that the development would require an enormous outlay of money without any chance of a return for several years to come, he gave the word for the purchase of the 1250 acre tract of hill, valley and river land and for its improvement on a scale possible only in the highest developments in America.

Ottawa Hills now represents the best thought and skill of the nation's foremost city plan experts and landscape engineers. Frederick Law Olmsted of Brookline, Mass., was a consultant, and the work actually done was in charge of men who had performed similar services for the famous Roland Park district in Baltimore and the Country Club district in Kansas City. Restrictions at Ottawa Hills are self-perpetuating and maintenance of the property is insured by organization of its residents and the assessment of a maintenance fund.

Home building in this big property started in the summer of 1916. Before the spring of 1917 a score of homes were built or under construction representing an investment outlay of approximately $375,000. This demonstrates the character of the property and its merit in the eyes of the public.

A full third of the property is given over to park purposes. This public land includes property on both sides of Ottawa River which winds through Ottawa Hills for a distance of nearly three miles. When the tract is entirely built up, the effect will be that of a harmonious panorama of handsome homes set in the forested uplands that look down from both sides of the river. The parked area will contain golf links, tennis courts, playgrounds for children, and rest and recreation centers. Six lakes will furnish boating and bathing. There will be tea pavilions, club-houses and similar structures.

No business can ever invade the tract. At its entrance a pretentious Civic Centre is being erected by the company. Here will be housed in artistic buildings all the stores, shops, fire-fighting equipment and other utilities that will serve the immediate needs of residents. Churches, schools and public halls also will have their location here.

Ottawa Hills will supply Toledo's demand for the highest class residential property, but it will not be exclusively the center of homes of wealth. Families of average means will be given the same opportunity and the same protection that goes to the costliest residence.

THE LAMSON BROTHERS COMPANY, TOLEDO, OHIO. The story of The Lamson Brothers Company is a story of much human interest. It is a story which shows what strict integrity will accomplish, a story which tells what industry, fidelity to principle and "taking and giving" public confidence will do. It is a lesson from which a great moral can be drawn and young and old who read it, as "The Ohio Blue Book" is being consulted in schools, public libraries, offices and homes, can draw inspiration as an example worthy of emulation and a stimulus to honest effort in business and public dealing.

The great magazines are constantly publishing articles about successful men from whom its readers may draw inspiration and the proposition is a commendable one as it teaches the rising generation that honesty and integrity are invariably the foundation stones of success, and the history of Lamson Brothers Company whose large establishment is located and occupies imposing quarters running on Summit and Adams Streets, Toledo, Ohio, is also one of inspiration.

The firm which originally consisted of Julius G. Lamson, C. Edgar B. Lamson and John D. R. Lamson, began business in Toledo, October 6, 1885. Each of sturdy honest stock, were schooled from boyhood that success comes from indefatigable industry, watching details, keeping abreast of the times and serving the public well. Backed by practical business training these qualities were a large part of their assets as they opened their first comparatively small store at what is now 319 Summit Street, Toledo. In less than four years they bought the S. H. Frank Company starting with only a forty foot frontage and at this time Mr. C. Edgar B. Lamson, who held an important position in Columbus, severed his connections there and became personally connected with the Toledo business. The history of the house has been one of rapid growth and constantly increasing trade which with the growth of Toledo and development of the surrounding territory they have promptly met by expansion. Passing over further details in this direction, by tearing down older buildings and adding to their quarters, they now occupy at Summit and Adam streets in the heart of Toledo, a fine establishment, and are ranked among the largest and most prosperous dry goods houses in Ohio.

The present firm name is "The Lamson Brothers Company" which was incorporated February 1, 1905, and the personal sketches of Julius G. Lamson and C. Edgar B. Lamson appear in the proper place among the well-known business characters of the Buckeye State, elsewhere in the body of this work. John D. R. Lamson having been called by death in 1915. Such citizenship is worth emulating. As an illustration, the phrase they use in their daily advertising "If it is in our ad it's so" is taken by their thousands of customers, including a large mail order following, at its face value and an element of confidence which only time can establish and which is not measured by a money value.

THE BUCKEYE PAINT AND VARNISH CO., TOLEDO, OHIO. Confidence is the foundation stone of success in any line of endeavor. Any business which has the confidence of its patrons and the people has an asset which is bound to bring success when it is backed by energy, alertness and honest application to the matter at hand. It is this confidence which is the key-stone of the success which has attended The Buckeye Paint & Varnish Co., through their long career and whose finely equipped factories are located at Fifteenth and Lucas Streets, Toledo.

They have a long record behind them which shows an unbroken chapter of integrity, square dealing and making good with their patrons. Dealers who handle their goods know they are backed by quality and their best recommendations come from the consumers of their goods over a wide range of territory.

One of the greatest factors in this record is the integrity, broad-gauged ideas and energy of the man who has built up the business and has been at the helm ever since its organization—Mr. Peter F. Whalen, President of the company.

One of the leaders of The Buckeye Paint & Varnish Company is their renowned product—Buckeye "Crys-tal-Lac," one of the finest wood finishes ever placed on the market. They manufacture everything in the paint and varnish line and here is a list of some of their products all under the title of "Buckeye":

Crys-tal-lac "The New Wood Finish."
 Crystal-Rock Finishes.
 Crystal-Rock interior.
 Crystal-Rock exterior.
 Shingle Stain.
 White Lead.
 Crack and Crevice Filler.
 Carriage Paint.
 Automobile Paint.
 Ready Mixed Paint.
 Varnishes.
 Liquid Filler.
 Paste Filler.
 Hard Drying Enamels.
 Barn Paints.
 Colors in Oil or Japan.
 Primers.
 Floor Paints.

They of course more especially manufacture for the trade and associated with Mr. Whalen are his three sons, John J., Peter F., Jr., and Milton E. Whalen, all young men of energy and ability, and the future of this concern was never brighter.

BOOK BINDERS AND BLANK BOOK MAKERS. Thoroughness, care and close attention to every detail is the policy of George H. Klippstein Co. book binders and printers, whose well equipped establishment is located at 122-124 North Eleventh Street, Toledo, Ohio.

The key-stone of this fine business structure is "high class durable workmanship." Backed by good equipment and by employing people of experience and with a thorough knowledge of the art of their trade, this house has built up a wide range of business among high grade patrons.

Klippstein & Company make a specialty of binding for the printing trade, yet they take orders and turn out promptly one or a thousand volumes on personal orders in all styles of workmanship. Every customer must be a satisfied customer and get what he asks for, is Mr. Klippstein's method.

They also do all kinds of ruling blank book work on special orders and will figure with you on printing any kind of a job you desire.

If you want anything in binding, ruling or printing, it will be to your interest to consult George H. Klippstein & Co., 122-124 Eleventh Street, Toledo, Ohio.
